This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. PREFACE

To THE CLASS:

It is with mutual feelings of relief that this Third Report is completed. You will no longer be pestered with tiresome statistical blanks, and I shall try to forget the blue pencils and galley proof that has been haunting me for weeks.

The present Report is intended to contain the history of our respective careers since Commencement, 1907. Many of the accounts have proved fascinating reading to me, and I shall be interested to know whether you will have occasion to revise some of the opinions you may have formed of some of our classmates, after reading the Report. I have changed a great many of my hastily formed undergraduate impressions after seeing what some of the fellows have accomplished. In every case I have tried to print in a man's own words what he has to say of himself, feeling that an autobiographical sketch would make the Report of greater personal interest to all of us than an editorial condensation. Unfortunately, I was obliged to omit a few of the autobiographies because of their late arrival. As compared with other classes, our showing of only fifty-nine men not heard from out of a class of seven hundred and eleven is not bad. Of this number, thirty were men whose connection with the class was extremely brief. My only regret is that in a good many cases a man's failure to respond was due to indifference and not to his blank's having gone astray.

Contrary to the frequent custom of late years, I have prepared this Report myself, and did not turn it over to the Alumni Association Office. The Report may, therefore, lack something of smoothness and technical finish. But I was extremely anxious to get into personal touch with the fellows, and I have a feeling that the class as a whole will profit more by a home-made product, than by a better book turned out by strangers. The amount of time and labor involved in the preparation of the Report was much greater than I had anticipated, and this must be my apology for the errors which it doubtless contains. I have done my best to minimize them, but have no idea that I have been entirely successful. I wish to thank those who have assisted me with information and otherwise, and particularly Mr. Arthur Lonngren, who has taken great pains in connection with much of the clerical work, and my partner, Wilder Goodwin, who has borne the brunt of our practice for considerable periods when the Report required all my time.

JOHN REYNOLDS,
Secretary.

HARVARD 1907 CLASS FUND

TREASURER'S REPORT

BOSTON, MASS.,

December 31, 1912.

This report covers the period since the rendering of the Triennial Report. Each bond is listed at its cost price, this being considered its capitalized value for the purposes of this statement.

The smallness of the sum received on subscription payments in 1912 is due to the fact that no notices were sent to those whose subscriptions were due. The year 1911 was the last of the five years in which subscriptions were to be paid, and as they were, after all, only gifts and not business debts, it seemed best at that time not to pursue the subscribers further. As noted below, the unpaid subscriptions on December 31, 1912, amounted to $4,573.75, which is a rather large sum to write off from our assets. Furthermore, if a substantial part of this sum can be collected and invested, the accumulations of interest therefrom will be of great assistance in financing future class celebrations. It seems most probable that a large portion of this sum remains unpaid merely because of inattention on the part of the subscribers, and not by reason of inability or unwillingness to pay.

After consultation with the other members of the Class Committee, we decided that it would be wise to try to collect as much of this sum as possible. This is now being done.

Respectfully submitted,

RICHARD B. GREGG,

Treasurer.

AUDITOR'S CERTIFICATE.

I have made an examination of the books and records of Richard B. Gregg, Treasurer of the Class of 1907, covering all transactions up to December 31, 1912. All cash shown to have been received has been accounted for, and I have seen satisfactory evidence of payment for all disbursements. The cash and investments were found to be as stated in the balance sheet. I hereby certify that the above statements and balance sheet are in accordance with the records, and in my opinion accurately set forth the condition of the Class Fund on December 31, 1912, and the receipts and disbursements for the three years ended at that date.

Business address, Webster School, Cambridge, Mass., Residence, 113 White St., Waverly, Mass. Permanent address, 1432 River St., Hyde Park, Mass.

Is a teacher. Writes: "After graduation I became principal of the schools in Edgewood, R. I., where I remained two years. During the second year I married 'the best girl ever,' and we began our married life in a pleasant little flat overlooking Roger Williams Park, the pleasure ground of the inhabitants of Providence. In the fall of 1909 we moved to Cambridge, where I had accepted a position in the Webster School as sub-master. During the first year there, our baby boy was born and we began a new phase of our married life. Our own personal pleasures were relegated to the background, and we soon centered our interests on this 'Class of 1907 baby.'

"Feeling that country air would benefit us all we took up our abode in the suburb of Waverley—best known for its famous institutions on the neighboring hills. Here we are still living in our cozy little home, enjoying life with our two children and the many friends who drop in on us for the week-ends. Work there is, and plenty, with financial returns that are far from munificent, and yet which enable us to enjoy life to the fullest extent.

"The life of the schoolmaster is one of peculiar opportunities, and while it has its unpleasant features, like all places in life, it is worth while. To influence the rising generation to develop themselves so as to make worthy members of this great democracy, to build up in them correct ideals of character and incidentally to teach them the elements necessary for them to be successful in life, requires all the wisdom, tact and broad-mindedness developed by the four years spent at our dear old university."

Is a magazine publisher. Writes: "Spent several months immediately following graduation in writing for newspapers and magazines, until I accepted an offer to take charge of the book department of the Sheldon University Press at Chicago. After four or five months at Chicago, I went to Battle Creek, Mich., where I remained for three years doing editorial and publicity work for Dr. J. H. Kellogg and the Good Health Publishing Co. While at Battle Creek I organized a civic organization, the 'Community Club,' and, giving my spare time to it as secretary without salary, I secured seventy acres of city land, by gift and subscription, for a public park and playground; forced the starting of playgrounds in connection with the public schools; broke a 'ring' which controlled the School Board, and put new men into office, who have since brought about the desired reforms; helped to secure commission government for the city; managed a three-day homecoming celebration, attended by 50,000 people, with aeroplane flights by the Wrights; organized and conducted a prize competition for the beautifying of the city by private efforts; secured an ornamental lighting system (Tungsten clusters on ornamental standards) for the main streets of the city by private subscription, and was later awarded a prize of $100 by a committee of New York judges for the most notable public improvement in Battle Creek.

"Came to New York in the fall of 1911, and was employed until the spring of 1912 as assistant to Condé Nast, publisher

Is a banker. Writes: "Spent three years in law school, graduating in 1910. Have never practiced law. In July, 1910 entered the Treasury Department, Washington, D. C., as secretary to Hon. A. Piatt Andrew, the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of the financial bureaus. After staying in Treasury nearly a year, went abroad for six months. On November 1, 1911, became a member of the firm of Kissel Kinnicutt & Co., Bankers, 14 Wall Street, New York City, where I have been ever since."

GEORGE WILLIAM BAILEY. Son of Herbert Briggs Bailey and Alice (Brown) Bailey.

Born at Wollaston, Mass., May 14, 1887.

Prepared for college at Adams Academy.

Business address, W. H. McElwain Co., Boston, Mass. Residence, 46 Westland Ave., Boston, Mass., Permanent address, 348 Congress St., Boston, Mass.

Is a shoe manufacturer. Writes. "After graduation I went to work in the Beverly plant of the United Shoe Machinery Company as apprentice machinist. In the course of a year I worked in various manufacturing departments, finally reaching the 'setting-up' department, where the machines are assembled and tested. There I became interested in the actual operation of the machines in a shoe factory, and leaving Beverly, went to Bridgewater, where I found a chance to learn to operate machines in the shoe factory of W. H. McElwain Co. After a year on the machines, I became machinist, foreman, and assistant superintendent. Later I went to the Boston office where I worked in different departments connected with the factories of the company. For a year I was superintendent of the Derryfield factory in Manchester, N. H. A year and a half ago I was transferred to the sales department. Now I am selling shoes in the United States west of Denver, including the Hawaiian Islands and British Columbia, alternating three months on the Coast and three months in Boston."

EDWARD BALLANTINE. Son of Wm. Gay Ballantine and Emma (Atwood) Ballantine.

Born at Oberlin, O., Aug. 6, 1886.

Prepared for college at Springfield, Mass.

Residence, 157 Mt. Auburn St., Cambridge, Mass. Permanent address, 321 St. James Ave., Springfield, Mass.

Is a teacher of music. Writes: "In August, 1907, I went to Berlin, Germany, where I remained for two years, studying piano playing. During the first year I studied composition also. The dinners of the Harvard Club of Berlin, enlivened by the presence of Hermann Hagedorn, Wilder Goodwin and others, furnished a pleasant revival of the life in Cambridge. The fall of 1909 and the following spring I spent in Paris, studying composition. The winter I spent in Southern France for the sake of my health. Since the fall of 1910 I have been teaching piano and harmony in Cambridge and Boston. This last year I have been assistant in the music department of Harvard."

Business address, Hartford National Bank Bldg., Hartford, Conn. Residence, 220 Farmington Ave., Hartford, Conn. Permanent address, same as business.

Is an investment broker. Writes: "Since leaving college I have had a more varied life than I had expected; more varied in truth than exciting though. After spending a year in The Travelers' Insurance Company's employ my health demanded a change of scene and I went to Europe with members of my family. As my health still remained such that it seemed wise for me to remain away from my work still longer, I decided to spend the winter in Europe. In the fall I was married in St. Margaret's Church, Westminster, London. This church was originally built as the parish church of Westminster, when the monks of the Abbey refused longer to allow the people of the city to worship therein. It stands almost under the eaves of the Abbey. It contains much that is of interest to Americans. Among other things is the fact that in the chancel lies buried Sir Walter Raleigh. There is also a large stained glass window given by Americans in memory of Sir Walter.

"After traveling through England, Wales and northern France, we went to Munich for the winter. There is no doubt in my mind but that the Munich beer is in no wise rated too highly, and I can say the same of other of Munich's edibles, but as for the opera—'Nough sed! The best part of the winter was that that we spent in the Bavarian Tyrol, where we went for the winter sports.

"On my return to this country I again took up my work with the Travelers, but about a year ago I left them to go with Spencer Trask and Co., of New York, as there was then offering a chance to represent them in this part of the country. Since then Austin '07 and I tied up as Beach & Austin, to represent them here.

"Hartford is half way between New York and Boston and I would suggest that it is a good place for '07 men to break their journey between the two cities. The telephone has been the rest of the family moved to California. For several years I was rather unsettled, moving from place to place. I spent one year working on an orange ranch, with the idea of going into that business. But I found that I could not live in that particular part of the State, on account of the malaria. While there, near Visalia, I was married, and immediately moved to San Francisco. In 1910 I started in the electrical contracting business with my brother, and have been working along that line ever since. From a very small start we have established ourselves so that we are one of the largest and best contracting firms in the city. I hold the position of secretary and treasurer, but at the same time my duties consist more of superintending the construction end of the business than anything else."

Present address, Hotel Holley, Washington Square West, New York, N. Y. Has no permanent address, but mail addressed to Warren, O., will be forwarded.

Is an author. Writes: "After graduation spent three weeks as 'night police reporter' on the Cleveland Plain Dealer; then six months with the Bobbs-Merrill Publishing Company, Indianapolis. Came then to Boston as a reporter on the Traveler. After a few weeks of reporting, began a slow and insidious undermining of the best Boston traditions by starting a daily humorous column under the title of 'The Fact Is——.' As a general all-around sport, being funny in Boston is in the same category as making faces in church. After two years of this horror, became dramatic critic for the same newspaper, earning in that position the enmity of all our best actors, and the aversion of all good Bostonians by still refusing to be serious and carry a little green bag. Left the Traveler about a year ago—owing to a change in the paper's policy of reviewing plays—and since then have free lanced. Have published many magazine stories. In November, 1912, a play called 'If You're Only Human,' was performed for a week by the Parke Players in Pittsfield, Mass., and then brought to Boston for a special matinee. It has been purchased by a New York concern, and will eventually be produced on Broadway—probably under another name. Published in February, 1913, a novel entitled, 'Seven Keys to Baldpate'—'grips the reader from start to finish, etc., etc.' 'Seven Keys to Baldpate' is at present being dramatized by Mr. George M. Cohen, whom many people consider a far abler playwright than Prof. Kittredge's friend, Shakespeare. Am at present working on a new novel and a new play."

Is treasurer of Norfolk Hardening Works (Inc.). Writes: "From Oct. 2, 1907, to Aug. 20, 1908, I spent working for the Argentine Quebracho Co. at their factory at Greenpoint, Long Island. I went to the Argentine Republic on the latter date for them, to work on the construction of their new factory at Tartagal in the Province of Santa Fé. After the construction was completed I was made superintendent of the factory, which position I held until I left Argentina in April, 1912, to return to the States. In the meantime, however, I had a leave of absence of six months, four of which I spent in this country.

"Since May, 1912, I have been in the States, with the intention of remaining here. Soon after my return I became interested in the Eggemoggin Co. (Deer Isle, Maine), of which I am now president. This company owns some three-quarters of a mile of wooded shoreland which it is developing into a summer colony. We expect to erect bungalows, which will be ready this summer.

"For about a month past I have been looking into the case-hardening business, in which I am now engaged. On Feb. 13, 1913, I helped form a small corporation known as Norfolk Hardening Works (Inc.), of which I am clerk and treasurer. The business is case-hardening, tempering and retort annealing of American and foreign steels.

"I have opened an office at 141 Milk street, Boston, which will be my address henceforth. I am living at the Charlesgate Hotel."

Is a lawyer. Writes: "Having entered the Harvard Law School in the fall of 1906, graduated in June of 1909, and was admitted to the Massachusetts Bar in August of that year. I entered the office of Boyden, Palfrey, Bradlee & Twombly, counsellors at law, on Aug. 1, 1909. In 1910, I was appointed a Justice of the Peace throughout the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. On January 1, 1912, I opened an office for the general practice of the law at my present address, 35 Congress street, Boston. In April, 1912, I was made a member of the Federal Bar, and shortly thereafter was appointed an Examiner in the Land Court of said Commonwealth. In the fall of 1912 I became a member of the faculty of the day department of the Suffolk School of Law, teaching partnership to second-year men and wills to third-year men therein. I am also treasurer of the First Unitarian Sunday School in Newton. I have spent my summer vacations in the White Mountains camping and tramping, mostly with headquarters at Waterville, N. H. I was chairman of the tennis committee of said place two years. I have also spent some time in the mountains in the winter."

Prepared for college at St. Paul's School (Concord).

Business address, care of Messrs. Shepley, Rutan & Coolidge, 122 Ames Bldg., Boston, Mass. Residence, Chestnut Hill, Mass. Permanent address, Old Orchard Road, Chestnut Hill, Mass.

Is an architect. Writes: "The first year after my graduation I spent in the architectural department at Harvard. Continuing the study of architecture the following summer at the Technology Summer School, I was able, in the fall, to enter the 4th year design course under Professor Despradelle. It was during this year that I became convinced of the value of study in Paris; so that, after a brief experience in the office of Mr. Guy Lowell, in Boston, I sailed in November, 1909, for France. Perhaps unlike most Americans who have studied at the Beaux Arts, I did not return to this country at all during the three years I spent abroad. This enabled me to do a considerable amount of traveling on the other side in the summer time, but was responsible for my drifting rather sadly away from things and people at home; so much so that I felt rather like a ghost when I finally did land on home soil last August. It would go without saying that the life of the young American at the Beaux Arts, quite unique, usually, among his experiences, is one of the most thoroughly enjoyable periods of his life. One reason, of course, is that in Europe one still meets with much more sympathy and interest in the study of any branch of the fine arts than one does in America. Perhaps the best of it all is the friendships one makes when a member of a litttle community (mostly college men) which is strangely interdependent because in a foreign land.

I have to be most thankful that during these six years I have had no serious illness personally, nor any really terrible experiences, and I happened to be blessed with rather more than a liking for my profession. Most young architects like their 'job.' Among my associates in Paris, some of whom were Harvard men, as George Howe, Daland Chandler, Alvah Crocker, Harry Shepley and others, were many who are the keenest enthusiasts, and sure to be heard from. I am now in the office of Shepley, Rutan & Coolidge, in Boston, learning a little later than most of my genial classmates how small a drop I am in the bucket, after the independence of Paris, but enjoying it thoroughly just the same."

FRANCIS AUGUSTUS BONNER. Son of Andrew W. Bonner and Eleanor C. (Burke) Bonner.

Born at Chicago, Ill., May 20, 1885.

Prepared for college at Lake View High School.

Business address, Bureau of Railway News and Statistics, 1529 Railway Exchange Bldg., Chicago, Ill. Residence, 1529 Rosemont Ave., Chicago, Ill. Permanent address, same.

Is a journalist. Writes: "Entered newspaper work after a few months in the service of the Western Electric Co., Chicago, and a few months of political work in the same city. Joined the staff of the Chicago 'Evening Post' in November, 1908, and after six months on the local staff was appointed railroad editor, involving also the duties of associate financial editor. In that capacity I made a number of journeys through the West, Northwest, South and Cuba, in the service of the railroads for the purpose of featuring the scenic marvels of America in several series of travel letters.

"During a journey in 1912 through Glacier National Park, Montana, was adopted into the Blackfeet Tribe of Indians, receiving the name Nee-Nay-Nook-Ka, or Chief Elk.

"I have lately left the Chicago 'Evening Post' to become assistant director of the Bureau of Railway News and Statistics."

Born at Springfield, Mass., May 21, 1885.

Prepared for college at Brookline High School.

Business address, Marblehead, Mass. Residence, Rockmere Hotel, Marblehead, Mass. Permanent address, same.

Is an electrical engineer. Writes: "After leaving college, I went into business with my father, and assisted in the construction of a large addition to our summer hotel in Marblehead, taking charge of the electrical construction, which is my real occupation. I assist my father in the management of the hotel for the summer months. In January of that winter I went to Halifax, N. S., on a business trip, and while there had a chance to sail home in a large fishing schooner, 'Fame.' The boat had been practically abandoned by her former crew, on account of smallpox aboard, and after having been fumigated was awaiting a new crew from her home port, Boston. Some trouble arose with the Canadian government, and the owners were notified by the Consul to get the schooner out of Halifax at once. With a captain, and a crew of 7 fellows (including several Harvard fellows) we set sail. A storm came up and we were in a bad fix. For ten days we were tossed about, rations were getting terribly short, the sails were torn to pieces, and we had given up all hope. Finally we managed to get our bearings, and found we were off Neversink Light and put up our distress signal. We were sighted by the Revenue Cutter, 'Mohecan,' and towed to New York.

"In October of the same year I married, built a house in Marblehead, and settled down and tried to settle up. Both were equally hard. In March, 1911, a daughter arrived to grace the household. These are the most important events in my life up to the present time."

Is a merchant. Writes: "My career? Tuck the tale of it into a mere three hundred words? Shade of John Harvard! Since when did my Alma Mater begin to send out into the world men whose careers could be thus briefly chronicled?

"I feel sure, however, that you must have had me alone in mind when this limit was placed, for, from the very nature of things, the life of him who follows the mercantile trail successfully blazed by his father, is more or less uneventful.

"I am a member of the firm of A. A. Brager—Department Stores—a business which my father established in 1883. Immediately after graduation I was installed as 'clerk in ordinary' in the Domestic Department. There is no better grilling than the learning of a finely woven muslin, or anything more interesting than the successful completion of a hard-driven sale, particularly when it is necessary to convey to a great many of the primitive who purchase in this department that the correct pronunciation of mercerized merchandise is as we know it should be, and not, according to their precepts, 'mesmerized.' After a year I was advanced to higher salesmanship, viz.: in the dress goods and silk department. Still later on I was installed in the house furnishing department, and then gradually took on the buyership of various small departments. Just about now my work is mostly executive, besides assisting in merchandising and advertising. I still buy for a few 'pet' departments.

"The only other incident that may be of any interest is that I spent most of the entire year of 1911 in Europe, studying mercantile conditions, particularly the systematic details of manufacture one finds in Germany. I subsequently enjoyed the continental life of France and southern Switzerland."

LOUIS ALBERT BRAMAN. Son of Morris Braman and Celia Braman.

Business address, 27 State St., Boston, Mass. Residence, 8 Drummond St., Dorchester, Mass. Permanent address, same.

Born at Boston, Mass., April 24, 1886.

Prepared for college at English High School.

Is in the real estate business. Writes: "The summer after graduation I joined the city staff of the Boston 'Advertiser.' The following year I left to take position of Advertising Manager for the Boston Suburban Electric Co. In 1909 I was on the city staff of the Boston 'Journal' and had begun to do active work in the real estate field, which I have since followed almost exclusively. Since 1911 I have also done musical criticism for the 'Musical Courier,' and have been an assistant inspector of health under the Massachusetts State Board of Health, investigating factory hygiene in Suffolk County."

JOSEPH HENRY BRECK. Son of Joseph Francis Breck and Annie Hayes (Wild) Breck.

Born at Allston, Mass., Feb. 3, 1885.

Prepared for college at Boston public schools and Volkmann's School.

Business address, Metropolitan Museum, 82d St. and Fifth Ave., New York, N. Y. Permanent address, Beacon St., Waban, Mass.

Is assistant curator, Dept. of Decorative Arts, Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City. Writes: "After graduating I studied a year abroad. Returning, I entered the Harvard Graduate School as a resident student, but left in February, 1909, to accept a position in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, where I am now Assistant Curator in the Department of Decorative Art. I have written a catalogue of the Gothic and Renaissance sculpture in the Museum (published in 1913) and numerous articles on Renaissance painting and sculpture, which have appeared principally in foreign periodicals. I am a collaborator on 'L'Art,' 'Archiv für Kunstgeschichte,' and a member of the Advisory Committee of 'Art in America.'"

DANIEL CLARKE BRENNAN. Son of James Brennan and Beatrice (Clark) Brennan.

Born at Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 3, 1884.

Prepared for college at Cambridge Latin School.

Business address, Worcester City Hospital. Residence, 24 DeWolfe St., Cambridge, Mass. Permanent address, same.

Is a physician. Writes: "After graduation I entered the Medical School, and for the first time in my career actually worked. Fortune favoring me, I always came out on the right side of the fence, so that last June I was presented with a large placard imprinted thereon with a mass of unintelligible words, my name in the middle of them—'us' tacked onto each one, making it Latin—the whole signifying that I was fully equipped to save or take human life. For the past two summers I have been entrusted with the care of the physical and sanitary welfare of the members of the engineering camp at Squam Lake, an amusing if not lucrative pastime. Last September the scene shifted to Worcester, where I am still tending to the ills and ailments that befall mankind."

GEORGE WILLIAM BRICKA. Son of William Bricka and S. Emily (Katherler) Bricka.

Born at New York, N. Y., May 26, 1884.

Prepared for college at New Rochelle High School and with Myron Lochman (tutor).

Business address, 114 E. 28th St., New York, N. Y. Residence, 83 Bank Street, New Rochelle, N. Y. Permanent address, same.

Is an advertising agent and publisher. Writes: "My business career began in August, 1907. I located in the advertising and correspondence departments of Wing & Son, Piano Manufacturers, New York City, remaining with them until October 1, 1909. The opportunity presenting to join with two other men in the formation of an advertising agency, I resigned. On October 4th our shingle was hung out. Since then my former associates have withdrawn from the firm, leaving it entirely in my hands. The work of my agency has enjoyed reasonably steady growth, and has brought me into most intimate relations with a wide variety of businesses. More recently I have undertaken the publication of 'Posters: A Critical Study of Poster Design in Continental Europe, England, and America,' by Charles Matlack Price (Harvard, 1909), Editor of 'The Architectural Record.' The de Luxe edition of this work will appear in March, 1913."

employed continuously by the Harvard Co-operative Society in the stationery and book departments. My summer vacations have been mostly spent in the Land of Evangeline, as a direct result of which I am engaged to be married to Miss Susan Lennox Mills, of Grand Pré, N. S. Being interested in the 'back to the land' movement, I have acquired a tract of land near Boston, where I am about to start a fruit farm and hope to be able to supply apples for the twentieth anniversary."

CHAPIN BRINSMADE. Son of John C. Brinsmade and Mary (Gunn) Brinsmade.

Born at Washington, Conn., March 1, 1885.

Prepared for college at Gunnery School.

Business address, 40 Wall St., New York, N. Y.' Residence, White Plains, N. Y. Permanent address, Washington, Conn.

Is a lawyer. Writes: "I left college at the close of junior year, spent the summer at home, and taught in the Gunnery School (of which my father is head master) the next year. In the spring I returned to Cambridge to take my degree with the class. The next three years I spent in the Harvard Law School, and have been working in New York since August, 1910."

WILLARD COPE BRINTON. Son of Samuel Lewis Brinton and Elizabeth (Smith) Brinton.

Born at Westchester, Pa., Dec. 22, 1880.

Prepared for college at Westchester Normal School.

Business address, Bush Terminal Co., New York, N. Y. Residence, City Club, New York, N. Y. Permanent address, Harvard Club, New York, N. Y.

Is a mechanical engineer. Writes: "After graduation went to Pittsburgh with the Westinghouse Electric Co. Spent three years there in interesting special work, involving engineering and executive problems in every department of the works. Planned and installed a new building, arranged to treat by special processes some eighty kinds of bi-products.

"In the fall of 1910 I did some work for the United States

Motor Co., recommending the best commercial utilization of thirteen plants for the manufacture of automobiles. This lead to an appointment as assistant to vice-president in the manufacturing department. A year ago I resigned to take the position of mechanical engineer for the Bush Terminal Company of Brooklyn.

"My work with the Bush Terminal Company includes a wide range of commercial and engineering work. For one thing, I am designing and installing several new types of electrical machinery for the rapid and economical handling of steamship and railroad freight in the biggest and best plant of its kind in the world.

"Am a member of the City Club's 'Committee on the Development of the Port.'

"In odd moments I am writing a series of articles on graphic statistics to appear in the Engineering Magazine. A book on 'Graphic Statistics' is about ready to go to press. This book contains over one hundred and fifty charts and diagrams as a suggestion toward universally standard methods of making figures and quantitative facts readily understandable to the average busy man. A group of men who believe thoroughly that facts can be presented more vividly by diagrammatic methods have organized the Statistical Bureau, with office in the Transit Building, 7 East 42d St., New York. The business is rather general in scope, but especial attention is paid to the operating records and financial reports of industrial corporations and railroads.

"Am a full-fledged member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. The German engineers have invited the members of the Society to visit Germany this summer and make a long tour to see the industrial development of the country. We have chartered the whole steamer 'Victoria Louise,' of the Hamburg-American Line, sailing June 10th. I am planning to go on the trip, though I hate to miss the good doings of the 1907 Sexennial."

Is an assistant superintendent of belt factory. Writes: "The first two years after leaving Harvard (1906-07 and 1907-08) I spent at the Mass. Institute of Technology, taking a B.S. degree in Mechanical Engineering. In the summer of 1908 I went to work for I. B. Williams & Sons, manufacturers of belting, lace leather and welting. I have worked there ever since, at present being assistant to the superintendent. On June 1, 1909, I married Marguerite L. Williams and spent the summer of 1910 in Europe. We landed in Italy and traveled at our leisure through Italy, Switzerland, down the Rhine valley, through the low countries to Paris, and finally through England. Needless to say we enjoyed the trip. In July, 1910, my daughter, Mary Phyllis Brown, was born. Since then, I have done very little out of the common routine of home and business, and I am glad to say that both are thoroughly pleasant."

The following summer I was an instructor at the Harvard Engineering Camp at Squam Lake, N. H. That fall I was resident engineer on the construction of a dam at Ashburnham, Mass.

"In the spring of 1909 I was connected with the construction of an additional water supply for the city of Springfield, Mass., from where, in August, I went to Indianapolis, Ind., being engaged on the erection of a steam power plant. The following spring I was on survey work for water power development, in the eastern part of Tenn."

"In the summer of 1910 I returned to Indianapolis, where I have been engaged in engineering work, and since May, 1912, I have been connected as assistant superintendent with the Crown Hill Cemetery Association, where I am at present."

Is a lawyer. Writes: "After graduating from college I spent three years at the Harvard Law School, where I took in a fair amount of common law and a bit of uncommon law. Part of this period I kept the world informed as to Harvard 'doings' by contributing to a New York newspaper. In 1910 I allied myself with the Legal Aid Society, probably not because I was particularly charitably inclined, but rather because I deemed it offered a valuable experience, and goodness only knows I needed it after the ten years of academic atmosphere of Cambridge. Recently I have become associated with the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, no longer pleading for the rights of the poor man, but standing up for the so-called corrupt corporation. If, in the meantime, I am not indicted, I shall be on hand for the June festivities."

Prepared for college with private tutors, and at Boston Y. M. C. A. Evening School.

Business address, Normal, Ala. Residence, A. & M. College. Permanent address, A. & M. College, Normal, Ala.

Is engaged in educational lines. Writes: "Immediately on leaving college I was engaged by Dr. Booker T. Washington to act as southern financial agent for the Tuskegee Institute in Alabama, of which I am a graduate. I had the entire Southern States as my field and it was my duty to organize Tuskegee Clubs among the graduates and ex-students of the school, and to solicit contributions from colored people generally. I did this work for two months—working the cities of Montgomery and Birmingham in Alabama. While I was engaged in this work in Birmingham the trustees of an industrial school in a coal mining district fifty miles out from the city (the Corona Industrial Institute, Corona, Ala.), learned of my qualifications and elected me to the presidency of their school. After two weeks' discussion of the matter I succeeded in convincing Dr. Booker T. Washington that I would be more valuable to the race as president of that school than as financial agent of the Tuskegee Institute, and he agreed to release me from my engagement with him. I took charge of the Corona Industrial Institute at Corona, Ala., Oct. 1, 1907, after having served as Southern financial agent for the Tuskegee Institute from Aug. 1 to Sept. 30, 1907. I held the position at Corona until July 1, 1909. I was then elected president of the State Agricultural and Mechanical Colleges for Negroes at Normal, Ala. This school was established in 1875 and receives state and federal aid. Its assured annual income is $26,500, and donations and incidentals make as much more. The school has thirty teachers and three hundred fifty students from the South and a few from the North. It is primarily, an industrial school, whose graduates are, first of all, teachers. In the three years during which I have been in charge I have erected, through the kindness of friends, a pumping station, boys' dormitory, hospital, and a girls' trades building. The two last cost nearly $30,000. I am the corresponding secretary of the Alabama State Teachers' Association, the most active and effective organization of its kind among colored people.

"Along with the leading colored business men of the South I have helped to organize the first old-line legal reserve life insurance company to be operated by colored people—the Standard Life Insurance Company of Atlanta, capitalized at $100,000, and having on deposit with the insurance commissioner of Georgia $100,000 worth of Georgia municipal bonds."

Business address, Copper Queen Cons. Mining Co. Residence, Bisbee, Ariz. Permanent address, 100 Valentine St., West Newton, Mass.

Is a mining engineer. Writes: "I received the degree of M.E. in June, 1910, after three years in the Graduate School of Applied Science, and in the same month went to the R. I. Coal Co., Portsmouth, R. I., as surveyor, which work was varied in the latter part of the year to bossing dagoes on a concrete construction job. In February, 1911, I pulled stakes and came to Bisbee to accept an important position as general manager of a 'muck-stick,' which instrument, rendered from the miner's vernacular, is none other than a shovel. I would recommend to anyone a limited dalliance of this sort in the hot workings where the temperature is between 90 and 100 degrees and the humidity close to the dew point, as a successful dispeller of all illusions as to the value of a college education. After five months of this I went into the engineering department, and at present am employed at one of the shafts as a sort of technical jack-of-all-trades, working under the direction of the foreman.

I hope I may have the pleasure of acting as guide and host to any '07 man whose business or fancy may lead him to this country, where the climate is such that many hotels advertise "Free board every day the sun doesn't shine," and get away with it. There are about fifteen other Harvard men in camp, unfortunately none of them being '07. We have a pleasant custom of giving dinners on the nights of Harvard-Yale events, in conjunction with the Elis. These have been productive of good times and have brought us in touch with such well-known and formerly well-feared Yale men as John C. Greenway, '95, and Foster Rockwell '05. I believe the dinners have had a broadening influence on our college spirit.

of Massachusetts on the improvements of the Charles River in Boston, and remained with that commission until October of 1907, when I accepted a position as draughtsman with the Long Island Department of the N. Y. Board of Water Supply on preliminary work for an additional water supply for the City of Brooklyn. In April, 1909, I was transferred to the Newburg Division of the Northern Aqueduct Department of the N. Y. Board of Water Supply and made an assistant engineer. From 1909 to the present time I have been employed on engineering work in connection with the construction of the Newburg Division of the Catskill Aqueduct for an additional water supply for the City of New York."

ARTHUR FRANCIS CHAMBERLAIN. Son of Luther F. Chamberlain and Nellie W. Chamberlain. Born at Somerville, Mass., Dec. 14, 1884.

Prepared for college at Newton High School.

Business address, 120 Franklin St., Boston, Mass. Residence, 55 Bridges Ave., Newtonville, Mass.

Is a salesman. Writes: "I spent the first two months after commencement surveying in various towns in Massachusetts. Then I went with Isaac Prouty & Co., shoe manufacturers of Spencer, Mass., as assistant purchasing agent. On Jan. 1, 1908, I left them to go with the Columbia Counter Co., of Boston, manufacturers of shoe counters. I traveled for them locally and through the Middle West and South, part of the time, and the rest I spent in the factory as assistant superintendent. I stayed there until August, 1909. Since then I have been in the sales department of S. D. Warren & Co., manufacturers of book papers."

Is a cost accountant. Writes: "From July, 1907, until January, 1909, worked in Boston in the Traffic Department of the New England Tel. & Tel. Co., on clerical work. Was laid off in January, 1908, on account of the panic of that time.

"From January, 1908, until September, 1908, worked in New York in the office of the repair shop of the New York Tel. Co. as assistant to the head clerk.

"From September, 1908 until September, 1911, worked in the office of Barnard & Miller, Printers in Chicago, having charge of the cost system and of the office routine.

"From September, 1911, until March, 1912, was in business for myself in Chicago installing cost systems for printers and stationery engravers.

"From March, 1912, until February 1, 1913, was secretary for the Ben Franklin Club of Chicago, a business organization of 200 employing printers. Was selected for this position because of my knowledge and experience in cost installation and when, with the election of a new president, this work was to be no longer the leading policy of the club I resigned.

"Am now looking for an opportunity to connect myself permanently with some very large printing firm as a cost-accountant. Failing in this, I shall go into business again for myself, installing cost systems for printers and members of the allied trades."

had enough of it. Shortly after that, coming into a little money, I began looking about for a good business opening and to take up some of the time I attended the Harvard Law School from September, 1910, to March, 1911, and gave that up, as the work was too difficult to agree with my health. In Jan., 1912, made the acquaintance of a veteran automobile man who last fall got me to go in with him in a fine proposition, namely, to take the agency for the Stutz automobile in the counties of New Haven, New London and Middlesex in Connecticut. Next year we hope to have the whole State of Connecticut. It looks so good that if we don't do well I shall very probably retire from business for good. I have not yet moved my family down to Connecticut, but I go there quite frequently myself. Have spent my summers in Waterloo, New Hampshire."

ROBERT BIGELOW CHAPIN. Son of Cyrus S. Chapin and Alice B. Chapin.

Is salesman for Chapin & Adams Co. Writes: "Tired of trying to assimilate 'book larnin' both my father and I decided that the business world needed my talents, so I left college at the end of the sophomore year and began my business career with my father's firm. I worked in overalls and jumper for two years and then became salesman at slightly increased remuneration. Worked along without much of interest to disturb the regular 'three squares' and sleep of daily existence until the spring of 1908, when, owing to misunderstandings, left the Chapin & Adams Co., and played ball all summer up in the White mountains. Patched up difficulties in the fall and went selling butter and eggs again. Married in Los Angeles, Cal., next year, and becoming imbued with the idea that all—even that which does not glitter—is gold in the West, moved to Los Angeles. Sold life insurance, stocks,

"From October, 1907, to June, 1908, inclusive, I worked at the Tabor Manufacturing Company, a concern making moulding machines, power rammers, saws, etc., and operated under the Taylor System of Scientific Management. This was very interesting except for the hours—7 a. m. to 5:30 p. m.

"Took another vacation in the summer of 1908 at Manchester, winning the President's Cup Tournament. In September our family went on a canoe trip down the Allegash River, in Maine, starting at Moosehead Lake and ending at Ft. Kent.

"From October, 1908, to October, 1909, I worked in the engineering office of E. W. Clark & Co., in Columbus, O., under Mr. M. S. Hopkins. Took trips in the spring of 1909 to Portland, Ore., St. Joseph, Mo., East St. Louis, Ill., Saginaw, Bay City, Mich., and Peoria, Ill. Most of the summer of 1909 and through October I worked for the Chattanooga Railway & Light Co., a consolidation which had just previously been made by E. W. Clark & Co. In November I returned to Philadelphia and took a short course in accounting at Banks Business College.

"February 1, 1910, I entered the Transfer Department of E. W. Clark & Co., remaining in this department until May, 1911, since which time I have been principally occupied on electric light and power rates and costs, information and reports concerning properties, etc.

"Took my vacation in 1910 and 1911 at Manchester, Vt. September and October of 1911 I spent at Portland, Ore., devising rates for the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company, and went out again in March and April, 1912, to introduce the new system.

"January, 1912, I was elected a director of the Farmers National Bank of Bucks County, at Bristol, in which our family has always had a large interest. In the summer of this year took a five weeks' motor trip through Europe with Mr. F. T. Clark, F. R. Wallace, E. Reynolds, Q. Reynolds, R. Walker and Dr. Hustace. We shipped our own cars over and made a tour of 3,000 miles across France, through the northern

Is a landscape architect and consultant on city planning. Writes: "Since graduation I have been engaged solely in civic development. I first traveled in Europe six months, studying parks, estates and other phases of landscape architecture. My first work was designing a 200-acre park at Dixon, Ill. From October, 1908, to June, 1910, I was superintendent of parks at Utica, N. Y., constructing parkways and bringing into use a 500-acre system. I was then for a year landscape architect to the Milwaukee County Park Commission, laying out a general scheme for parks and thoroughfare development, and for the City of St. Paul and its City Club, designing wholesale improvements to the Central District, along the river, leading to the Capitol, and in the business section, both of these with Mr. John Nolen as advisory. In 1911 I again went abroad, on the Boston Chamber of Commerce Tour, studying European cities and garden suburbs.

"Since then I have had a permanent office in Cambridge. My most important work has been a tentative city plan for Houston, Texas. The report covers a survey of existing conditions, physical development of the city and the legal and financial aspects, and is now being printed.

"I am a member of the American Society of Landscape Architects, the Boston Society of Landscape Architects, the American Civic Association, the National City Planning Conference and the National Housing Association, and have given papers at the recent meetings of the two last named. In the Australian Capital Competition I was adjudged second by the minority, equal to fifth among 137 entrants."

Is an architect. Writes: "Leaving college really meant going to work, after a year's post-graduate work at Robinson Hall, in the office of Messrs. Cram, Goodhue & Ferguson, who have adorned nearly every university in America, except our own, with buildings in the likeness of Oxford and Cambridge. After two years' experience in designing the haunts of those who choose to frequent Williams, Princeton, Phillips Exeter, and many another seat of learning, I went back for an extra year of study and became wiser in the conviction that no one is quite fit to go to college until he is out of it. I then returned to my former job—leaving it last fall to have my appendix disentangled, and spent most of the winter in England.

"To make a few pontifical observations on that interesting kingdom, I will say that the most obvious changes since my visit before are those inspired by the passing of Edward and the coming of the suffragette. No questions yet asked in the House of Commons have, I think, made clear that most of the letters these active ladies so conveniently destroy are never written. I mention this to account for the fact that our Secretary received no reply from me to his first notice and therefore favored me with one of his 'pitiful wails,' dated April 1st, to which I try to reply in the spirit of the day.

Is an architect. Writes: "On leaving college I went into the Boston office of the firm of Cram, Goodhue & Ferguson, taking lessons in freehand drawing of Prof. Brown of Technology. Afer taking the summer course in architecture at Tech, I came to Paris with an introduction from Monsieur Despradelle to Monsieur Chifflot, whose 'atelier' I attended with not very brilliant results for two years. After three months of freehand drawing at Julian Academy—most necessary for an architectural career—I joined the 'atelier' of my present professor, Monsieur Umbdenstock, of whom I cannot speak with too much enthusiasm. Not as 'practical,' perhaps, as many of the great professors of the 'Ecole des Beaux Arts,' he has a breadth of conception that is the best that the French School training has to offer. Far from insisting on a continual use of the academic or classical forms, he has tended rather to encourage me—as all his pupils—in whatever individuality I have been able to show, notably my passion for the Gothic. I cannot too strongly recommend any student who comes over to Paris, and whose idea is not primarily to acquire medals and other forms of glory that the French are so generous with, to pass, at least for a time, under the influence of this wonderful man.

"My summers have been devoted to traveling chiefly in France, and I have been back to America only twice and for extremely short visits. Was received in the Ecole des Beaux Arts two years ago, and am now in the first class."

Is an apple specialist. Writes: "Immediately after leaving college I went into the employ of Messrs. Curtis & Sanger, stock and note brokers, of Congress St., Boston.

"After two and one-half years with this firm I decided to go West and enter the apple business. My original intention was to purchase an orchard and go into the producing end, but a careful investigation of conditions led me to believe that western land prices were too high in proportion to the returns made, and that the best results were to be found in the selling side of the trade. This I took up, forming my own firm for the special handling of high-grade fruit, and continued for two years, until the Hood River Apple Growers' Union, which is the most up-to-date of any association in the country, made me an offer to come under their employ. I have been with them for about a year now and think opportunities along the line I have taken up to be excellent."

Is a lawyer. Writes: "Since leaving college I have settled down to the practice of law in Boston. Have traveled very little and devoted most of my time to work which I so dearly love. Having gone through law school before I went to college and passed the Bar examinations of Massachusetts, I started right to work. Money came so easy that I had to find a new way to spend it, so I got married, and since then have no difficulty in keeping funds at least down to normal. Any spare time I devote to automobiling or sailing, so that I have kept up my average yearly gain in weight until now I weigh 423 pounds. I now claim the championship in the two-mile run for 1907 for men over 400 pounds."

Is a professor of engineering. Writes: "I did not leave Cambridge until the spring of 1909, having spent the year 1907-08 finishing up my work in the department of electrical engineering. The following year I was assistant in the latter department.

"In July, 1909, I accepted a position in New York as engineer in the toll-traffic department of the American Telephone Co. After I had been in the telephone business for about six months, I had an opportunity to come to 'Carolina' as acting professor of electrical engineering for the remainder of that college year. It was a long 'Steve Brodie,' but I decided to take it, and the next June I obtained the permanent appointment as associate professor; at the same time I succeeded in convincing the authorities at Cambridge that Entrance History was not a prime necessity for a teacher of engineering, and so I received the degree of S.B. at the commencement of that year.

"My work here is very interesting, although at times it seems as if I work twenty-six hours out of twenty-four. I have full charge of the department of electrical engineering, which at present consists of myself and one assistant. Besides teaching, which in itself keeps me very busy, I have advisory supervision over the University Power Plant. This is a unique plant, in that it not only supplies the University with heat and light, but also supplies light and power to the town of Chapel Hill and operates the system of water works.

"The University at present has over eight hundred students, mostly poor boys working their way through. They also have learned by this time that 'dam Yankee' is really two words, and, fortunately for me, the worst they ever do is to spell the adjective backwards.

"In spite of family cares and professional worries, I do find time to 'hit the box' a couple of tunes every day, and so, with a little golf now and then I am managing to eke out a fairly comfortable existence."

Permanent address, 318 Aiken Ave., Pittsburg, Pa.

Is a journalist and playwright. Writes: "In the late summer and fall of 1907, directly after leaving college, I attended rehearsals in the New York theatres of Mr. Belasco and the Messrs. Shubert. Late in the fall of the same year I was called as instructor in English and public speaking to the University of Pittsburgh, where I remained for three years—until May, 1910.

"In the meantime, my first play, "The Promised Land" (a drama in four acts, written while I was an undergraduate) was produced in Cambridge by the Harvard Dramatic Club on Dec. 15, 1908, and was also published.

"In April, 1910, I was a member of the committee appointed to draft a constitution for the Conference of Instructors in Public Speaking in the colleges of New England and the North Atlantic States. This was the first meeting of the Conference, and was held at Swarthmore College. At the second annual meeting of the Conference, held at the College of the City of New York in April, 1911, I was appointed one of the seven editors of the first editorial board of the Public Speaking Review—the official publication of the Conference; and a year later, at the meeting at the University of Pennsylvania, was reappointed for a period of two years, so that my term expires in the spring of 1914. In the summer of 1910, at the annual convention of the National Speech Arts Association, held in Cleveland, I acted as chairman of the Conference on the Standardization of Work in Public Speaking in Professional Schools and Colleges.

"In May, 1910, I was called as educational director to the Educational Alliance of New York. The Educational Alliance is an institution which ministers to the civic and educational needs of immigrants. My duties were to supervise all the activities of the institution, the administrative and business details being left to an administrator of co-ordinate rank.

"A year later—1911—I resigned from the Educational Alliance, to devote myself to writing. On June 4, 1912, my play, 'A House Divided,' a drama of American manners in three acts, was presented at the Hyperion Theatre, New Haven, by Manager William A. Brady. On Oct. 28, 1912, my play, 'Under the Law,' a drama in four acts, was tried out by the Duquesne Stock Company of Pittsburgh. This play was later renamed 'The Iron Door,' and was presented by Manager John Cort at the Hyperion Theatre, New Haven, on Jan. 29, 1913, and in Chicago at the Chicago Opera House on Sunday night, March 9, 1913.

"I am a member of the Players and the Harvard Club, both of New York."

Is an engineer. Writes: "After graduation I worked two years with the Central Colorado Power Company successively as draftsman, power plant designer and resident construction engineer on sub-stations and transmission lines between Denver and Glenwood Springs. We were among the first to transmit power at 100,000 volts, the distance being 150 miles. During the Knickerbocker Trust Company failure, which temporarily embarrassed the above company, I spent three months with the Denver Union Water Company on civil engineering and irrigation investigations and also made a flying trip to Salt Lake City on some official work of an engineering nature.

"I left the power company to assume charge of the experimental laboratory of the E. R. Thomas Motor Co., of Buffalo. The work was most interesting, as we had a well-equipped laboratory, capable of producing accurate and dependable results in the testing of automobile motors and accessories. At the time of leaving the Thomas Company, I held the position of assistant engineer, but I thought it advisable to leave, and came to Detroit in the fall of 1909."

"Shortly after this I accepted a position as assistant executive engineer with the Hudson Motor Car Co. This proved to be most interesting, giving an inside view of the quantity production of automobiles, in which sphere of effort Detroit stands pre-eminent.

"My last change occurred when I left the Hudson for the Murphy-Potter Company, with whom I have been since February, 1911.

"The Murphy-Potter Company employs from 200 to 250 men, and comprises a brass and aluminum foundry and a completely equipped machine shop. Our output is used mostly by automobile makers and comprises all kinds of brass and aluminum parts completely machined in accordance with contract and specifications."

Is a journalist. Writes: "After graduation I taught school for two years, giving instruction in the ordinary high school branches. The term of 1907-08 I was assistant principal in the high school at Bellefonte, Pa.; the next year, master of modern languages and mathematics in the Wilson School at Fishkill-on-Hudson, N. Y. During the intervening summer I went abroad, spending most of my time in France.

"In February, 1910, after desultory work as special writer, I accepted a regular position with 'The Press,' Philadelphia, as a reporter. I continued in this department perhaps a little more than a year, doing, in addition to regular news writing, considerable special and editorial work. In the fall of 1911 I was appointed literary editor, and the following summer dramatic editor, both of which positions I still hold. The summer of 1912 I spent, on leave of absence, in Europe, for the most part in England and in Berlin, Germany. I have done no regular, but considerable desultory, studying abroad. Is a publisher. Writes: "I shall always remember the contrast I had to endure in leaving the happy days of Cambridge —four years we all remember as the best possible—to put on overalls and a flannel shirt and slave as a common laborer at six per in the dingy, grimy gloom of the Atheneum Press, East Cambridge. After class day I joined the Signet Cruise, which ended so calamitously on the rocks at Hyannisport, and on my return entered into a life of crude hardship and labor, loading teams with shipments and packing boxes in the shipping department. All through the summer I slaved at this choice occupation. I was anxious to start and live on what I earned, and I am glad to say that I have lived from the moment of graduation until to-day on what I have earned, with no help from any one or any pleasant little income on the side.

"From the shipping department I was promoted to the various departments of the press, setting type, reading proof, press room work, electrotyping, etc., and one fine day I was called over to the Boston office of Ginn & Co., and given a desk of my own—an office, and could wear a collar and get in as late as nine o'clock! This, after nine months in the factory!

"I found that I was assistant to the advertising manager, and I had lots of fun getting up ads, booklets, and so forth. As my boss was not much older than I was, I didn't see how I could get his job for some time, so I began to look about after a year of this work. One day the employment bureau in Cambridge called me up and asked if I wanted to go abroad for a trip, and I said I might if things were attractive. As it turned out, I was offered a very excellent job of about three months in Europe, tutoring a youngster, and it looked pretty good to me, so I packed my trunk and caught a steamer in less than a week's time from my notification. I tutored hard for about three months, and was enjoying Paris so much that I decided to stay and travel by myself for a while. So I had about three months more of travel through Italy, Switzerland, France, etc., and then returned home to work again.

"I had a very good job offered me at the Manhattan Press in New York, which I accepted. One day I was told the Manhattan Press was about to cease business; and as I had a very good offer for the following fall I decided about February, when it was very cold and gloomy in the East, to go to California. I traveled through the West during the spring and summer, and reached Manhattan Island in time to open up the new offices of The Banker & Investor Magazine Publishing Company in the fall of 1911. Since then I have been working hard trying to build up a magazine that some people might read and that will be of value. Besides 'Business in America,' the magazine, we publish business books, and are growing every day. I am secretary-treasurer of the company, which means more work than its valuable title should warrant; also managing editor, signifying general office boy and nuisance."

Born at Abernant, Wales, Oct. 26, 1881.

Prepared for college at Wyoming Seminary.

Business address, High School Bldg., Phoenixville, Pa. Residence, 388 Second Ave., Phoenixville, Pa. Permanent address, same.

Is a high school principal. Writes: "I came to Phoenixville in the fall of 1906 as an experiment on the faculty of the High School. By coaching the football team, though I had never handled a football before; by teaching practically every subject in the curriculum, and by numerous other and similar criteria, I seemed so far to vindicate the choice that I have been kept on. For the past three years I have been principal of the High School—principal learner or principal teacher, I am not quite sure, which—perhaps I'm both.

"For six of my seven years of residence here I have been a member of the board of trustees of the Public Library; and for three years have been chairman of a Shade Tree Commission that has had much to do with giving advice as to care and selection of trees and scolding as to abuse of the public trees. My outbreaks into print are confined to a few newspaper articles on care and selection of trees, and an attack on Teachers' Institutes, to appear in the Pennsylvania School Journal.

Is a teacher. Writes: "I spent the year 1907-08 studying at Merten College, Oxford, England. The next year I spent in Pasadena, Cal., with relatives, reading and studying. The next three years I spent in the Harvard Graduate School, taking the Ph.D. in English in June, 1912. In the summer I married, and we went to Austin, Texas, where I taught Freshman English up till Christmas; at that time we left because my wife was suffering from appendicitis. Finding that an operation was necessary, we came to Palo Alto, Cal., both for the sake of the climate and because Mrs. Downes' relatives were here. I do not yet know where I shall be next year."

Is a designing engineer. Writes: "I spent the summer of 1907 working as foreman on street paving in Staten Island. In the fall I returned to Cambridge and took up post-graduate work in civil engineering, spending most of my time on the study of concrete. I obtained a master's degree in civil engineering in 1908. I went to work at once as superintendent in charge of pavement construction for the Hastings Pavement Co., New York City, and worked for them in this capacity until May, 1910. In May, 1910, I went to work for the Turner Construction Co., New York City, contractors and engineers for reinforced concrete construction, as construction engineer on a large warehouse building in Brooklyn. On Oct. 8, 1910, I was married to Sally Thompson Crary at New York City. During 1911 I was assistant superintendent on two small buildings constructed in Middletown, N. Y., and construction engineer on Bush Factories Nos. 7 and 8, Brooklyn. During 1912, I was assistant superintendent on Bush Factory No. 20 construction, general assistant on a building built for the American Agricultural Chemical Co. in Long Island City, and superintendent on a small building built for the Standard Varnish Co. in Staten Island. From January, 1913, to date, I have been working as assistant designing engineer on reinforced concrete construction at the office of the Turner Construction Co."

Is a lawyer. Writes: "After I graduated from college I attended Harvard Law School for three years, receiving degree of LL.B. in June, 1910. Then I spent two months abroad, returning in the fall to Rockford, Ill., where I studied for the Illinois bar examinations in my father's law office, passing them in October, 1910. After that I worked in his office until December 31, 1910, when I went to Chicago and became a law clerk in the office of Peck, Miller & Starr. That firm in May, 1911, reorganized, and became Miller, Starr, Packard & Peckham, and I for the first time was put on a salary, where I am at the present time.

"I am allowed to develop my own practice, and retain fifty per cent. of what I earn; and they also give me fifty per cent. of whatever fee I turn their way. On the whole, this arrangement is satisfactory, and I expect to continue it for a year or two longer, when I hope to start out for myself or in partnership with some one else."

New York City, doing some local business; but the principal distribution was through orders from a 60-page catalogue. The Stuart Baby Shop (with Van Dyke's Baby Stuart as trade mark) did not become, as I anticipated, a paying proposition overnight. After organizing it, I popped back into the publishing field. The Stuart Baby Shop, however, is now prospering. It is a corporation, of which I am president, and has a street floor store at 52 West 39th St., New York City. As it is the only baby shop in New York City, it is becoming better known every minute.

"At present, in addition to my work as purveyor to prospective mothers, I am advertising manager of the Cotton Publishing Co., of Atlanta, Ga. They publish two class papers: 'Electrical Engineering' and 'Cotton.' As I divide my time between New England and New York City, I live at 108 Winthrop Road, Brookline, Mass.

"In 1907 I spent three months abroad, and during my perigrinations met Rebecca Lane Hooper (Radcliffe, '03), of Brooklyn, N. Y. We were married at the summer home of her parents at Walpole, N. H., July 27, 1912. It was a strong Harvard wedding. The father of the bride is a Harvard man, the two officiating ministers were Harvard men, the organist, and four of my ushers."

"The pleasant part of the railroading experience was a pass that enabled me to travel over quite some territory, chiefly to the Maine coast during the summer and fall of 1907. This made a change from the hot, busy sessions in the Auditor's office.

"The old chem. labs. had nothing on the two-by-four prison I spent some months in as chemist's assistant in a sugar refinery. Sugar to right of you, sugar to left of you, sticky all over you—if a man ever had cause to get stuck on himself, then was the time.

"A change of clothing was first on the docket each day. Trousers—say, the ones I wore were a complete armor! I had to wet 'em in order to walk, so stiff-jointed did they get at the knees. Above the belt line nothing but your birthday suit, for that lab. was some hot!

"Subsequent to this refining process, advertising opened up a field for which I had hoped for a considerable period. Today, after a short experience outside the fold, I am numbered among the publicity staff of the American Optical Co., Southbridge, Mass., the largest manufacturers of eyeglasses, spectacles and lenses in the world.

"One thing is sure: I shall take a pair of 'smoked ones' to that time next June as it looks RED to me for the class of 1907."

Is a beet sugar manufacturer. Writes: "Went into sugar business on June 1, 1907, with American Sugar Refining Co. Worked in the Jersey City Refinery, learning the technical part of the work. In September of that year went to Fort Collins, Colo., and worked in that factory, learning to run each station. Was day laborer. Later went into agricultural end and learned something of Colorado farming. Returned to New York next year and worked in the Havemeyer & Elder Refinery in Brooklyn. In September, 1908, returned to Colorado, and was made manager of the Eaton, Greeley, and Windsor factories of the Great Western Sugar Co., of New Jersey. I lived and made my headquarters in Greeley. In 1912 was elected to the board of directors of the company. Effective March 1, 1913, I am transferred to general office in Denver, to enter the sales department. Reside in Denver from then on."

Then, becoming dissatisfied with existing conditions, I answered an ad. in the classified list of the Evening 'Mail' for a 'stenographer with knowledge of French; German, etc., to go to China.' As it turned out, my present employers, Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co., took another man for the position, but at the same time took me into their New York office, where I have continued ever since, as stenographer, typewriter and clerk in the Foreign Department of that firm.

"Little remains to be said, except that I have dabbled a bit in literature, without as yet, however, having gained a foothold in that enchanting but precarious walk of life. At present I am doing a little amanuensis work for a rising playwright in New York City. His play has not yet been produced, but 'where there's life there's hope.' Added to this, a little dilletante work in literature, such as book reviews, a short story here and a little piece of poetry there, and you have all there is to the 'practical' side of the story of my young life up to date."

Business address, Washington, D. C. Residence, 1426 R St., Washington, D. C. Permanent address, Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D. C.

Is a lawyer. Writes: "I was admitted to the Massachusetts bar in 1909, and received an LL.B. from Harvard in 1910. I served as president of the Prospect Union of Cambridge from 1909 to 1911. My first year in the practice of law was spent with Davis, Peabody & Brown, of Boston. On March 27, 1911, I was happily married to Helen Walker of Burlington, Vt. We have no children. In the fall of 1911 I was engaged by the Interstate Commerce Commission as a special agent. Later I served for a brief period as private secretary to Commissioner Franklin K. Lane, now Secretary of the Interior. Later I was appointed an attorney for the Commission, which office I now hold. My home is in Washington, D. C., but my duties take me to all parts of the United States. This work, dealing with a branch of the law that is in its formative stage and affording an opportunity for public service, has proved so absorbing that I have had time for little else, except home interests and an occasional evening with the Harvard Club of Washington, of which I am a member."

tions, and I learned by 'the laboratory method' several things that a teacher ought not to do, and a few things that he ought to insist upon doing. During the next two years (1910-1911), as principal of a graded school of 200 pupils and of a high school of 50 pupils, in Canaan, Conn., I taught science and mathematics, and gained in experience still further. Since July, 1912, I have been district superintendent of schools for the towns of Clarksburg, Florida, Monroe, and Savoy, near North Adams, Mass. I like the work, and I begin to feel that I am in the current enough to be in touch with some of the great things which are being done in our profession and with the things which we hope may come to pass.

"My work as superintendent is by far the most interesting which I have yet undertaken. To train and to inspire teachers is no sorry task, and the demands of the work upon time and energy are all-absorbing. But the problems of rural education in Massachusetts must be met and solved, and the district superintendents of Berkshire County are doing all they can to solve them."

Becoming interested in opera, I then attended the William L. Whitney International School of Opera, Boston, Mass., where I spent the years 1910-11 and 1911-12, when I was again seized with the determination to finish my law course. In the fall of 1912, I re-entered the Harvard Law School to finish my last year and at the present time I am a student there in my last year. I am also doing some singing, both as tenor at St. Paul's Cathedral, Boston, and as first tenor of the Schumann Quartette, and between the singing and the law school work I manage to keep out of mischief. Lately I have joined the appendicitis club, having been operated on at the Stillman Infirmary on March 19th. At present I am endeavoring to make a record for speedy recovery, as you may judge for yourself by the fact that I left the hospital eleven days after my operation, and am now filling out my report. Well, you know the old saying, 'It's hard to keep a 1907 man down.' Enough said."

Is an architect. Writes: "After one year of college in the class of '05 and three years of Architectural School with our class of '07, I departed from Cambridge without a degree and joined the people of the outside world. It happened thusly:

"April 19, 1906, San Francisco was shaken—as everyone knows. I left Cambridge with a dozen or so other Harvard men in the same line of business—architecture—to aid in the building up of San Francisco. The Massachusetts Relief Association sent us out from Boston on the 30th of April. San Francisco was a heaven for two years—and in that time was brought from ruins to an overbuilt city. From San Francisco I went to Seattle, where I did my little share in the architect's office of the A. Y. P. Exposition. I remained in Seattle for about two years. Next I spent a year and a half in Vancouver, B. C., on some office building work. I am now back in Boston again—getting more education along my line of study—and hope some day to return to the West. For the more one travels, the more one likes to return; and the more one values the good things of home and Harvard."

Is a lawyer. Writes: "The blank page comes nearer a true history than anything I can put on it. It has been a case of get married, raise babies, and worry about money. I did succeed in picking up my little bunch of would-be divorcées, hard creditors and bankrupts. I got so tired of lying and being lied to that I threw the whole bunch out the door and tried to do the legal end of business enterprises. That paid better, and seemed cleaner. I pinned my money to my shirt when I took the Bar examinations and have wondered if I ought not to go clear to the hide. It has proved so much better that I have tied up to one enterprise and will perhaps practice more business than law.

Is a bond salesman. Writes: "Following graduation I entered the employ of the banking firm of Geo. A. Fernald & Co., Boston, and served nine months as a 'runner' in the stock department. Then the fever to go West took hold of me, and I secured a position in Iowa with a railroad under construction. My work included pumping a hand car, dumping wheelers, and rodding for one of the engineers, etc. Following three months of this I went to Butte, Montana, with the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., as assistant to their commercial agent. Butte proved the place to make a fellow want to come home, so about three months later I returned East. I reentered the employ of Fernald & Co., this time as a bond salesman, with New Hampshire my territory. I enjoyed the work, and after getting acquainted had good results.

"In October, 1910, desiring a vacation, I went to Texas by steamer. On the return trip I ran into hard luck: Thirty-six hours out of Galveston we encountered a West India hurricane and for days never expected to see land again. The storm was the most severe any of the ship's crew had ever experienced. The mate, who had been in typhoons in the China Sea, never saw its equal. The captain was on the bridge for ninety-six hours, without sleep. The barometer went lower than any record shows, 27.45. The wind had a velocity of 110 miles. For four nights we went to bed with our clothes on, amidships, the only dry spot. Staterooms were flooded, bulk-heads demolished, upper deck windows smashed in by waves. The 'list' to the ship was appalling. The expectancy of going to the bottom for four days and nights, and all the other hardships of loss of sleep, practically no food, etc., proved a terrible strain on human vitality. But relief came finally, and we were still afloat. We hobbled back to New York, and I soon caved in with a nervous breakdown from which it has taken two years to recover. The treatment has included Burmuda, three months; a Panama trip, a Maine fishing camp, three months; Battle Creek Sanitarium, three months; a New Hampshire farm, about a year; but finally, with the help of Dr. Waterman, of the Harvard Medical School, I am now quite well recovered, and have been back in business about a month, assured I will remain in good health and continue my business activities with the bond department of Fernald & Co."

DOUGLAS GRAHAME FIELD. Son of James A. Field and Caroline L. (Whitney) Field.

Born at Lakewood, N. J., Oct. 1, 1882.

Is a designer in typography. Writes: "After spending the summer of 1907 abroad, I took a position at Milton Academy, where I taught for two years. Coming back to Cambridge, I put in a year of general study at Harvard, and then went to work as a typographical designer at the Riverside Press, where I have continued up to the present. The work includes much research among books of other periods, with a view to perpetuating styles that are still appropriate, and preserving the best traditions of book-making. One interesting detail of the work is the designing of suitable title pages and seeing that the designs are carried out. In general, a typographical designer bears to the printer the same relation as an architect bears to the builder."

Is a superintendent of efficiency. Writes: "During the summer of 1907 I was assistant receiving teller in the International Trust Co., of Boston. From September, 1907, until June, 1909, I was assistant in inorganic chemistry (in the First Year Laboratory, Division A) of the Mass. Institute of Technology. During this time I attended some seminary courses in the Research Laboratory for Physical Chemistry, and did some research work, and a little consulting work. The last included a short trip to Porto Rico in January, 1908. I was a demonstrator for the Automatic Box Machinery Concern of Boston, in the summer of 1908, and had charge of the erection and demonstration of a plant in Chelsea.

"In the spring of 1909 I received from the M. I. T. a Dalton Fellowship for study abroad, and in August started for Germany. I went first to Marburg, where I spent six weeks studying German and preparing for the Verbands Examinations. I spent the winter semester at Heidelberg, studying physical chemistry under Prof. Bredig. In the spring of 1910 my professor was called to the Federal Technical Institute at Zurich. I went with him and continued my work under him during the next three semesters. In July, 1911, I received the degree of Doktor der Naturwissenschaften (D.Sc.) for a thesis entitled 'Durch Katalysatoren bewirkte Asymmetrische Synthese.'

"While I was abroad I did not have much opportunity for travel, but I saw something of England, Scotland and France, and a good deal of the Rhineland and Switzerland. In Zurich the chief amusements besides walking tours and sailing and rowing on the lake were mountain climbing and hockey.

"During the year 1911-1912 I was instructor in inorganic chemistry at the M. I. T. I was married in May, 1912, and in June came to Glen Falls as superintendent of efficiency for the International Paper Co. Besides the work here at the headquarters, there is some traveling to the different mills of the company in New York State and New England."

"Within a few weeks after graduating from 'Tech' I entered the Standard Sugar Refinery at South Boston as assistant chemist. I have remained at the same place since then—for the last year and a half as night superintendent. I work for one week from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m., the next from 4 p. m. to 12 noon, and the third from 12 noon to 8 a. m.—this last being called in some trades the 'grave-yard shift.' In spite of these hours, which sound unearthly to most college men (except the reporters), I enjoy the hard practical work and keep in the best of health and condition. At the present writing I am not married, engaged, or even 'in hopes.'"

Is a lawyer. Writes: "I do not think that it is possible for me to write much about my life after graduation, for there is not much to say. I cannot become the President of the United States, as I was born in another country. I cannot become Governor of Massachusetts, as I see from late reports that Foss wants a fourth term, and I am not able nor have I ever been able, to write a check large enough to satisfy the Irish Democratic Committee for anyone running for that office. As far as becoming Mayor of Boston, I think that I could never be able to get to that exalted position, as I do not believe I could ever sing 'Sweet Adeline' in the same way that the present holder of that position does.

"So you see, I am in a hopeless position. Do you think there are better opportunities in New York?"

Is an electrical engineer. Writes: "After having, for my four years in college, planned to go to Law School, I suddenly gave up the idea at the end of the senior year and left Cambridge to go as a boys' camp councillor for the summer, without knowledge of what I should attempt in the fall. In the fall an opening came with Stone & Webster, and they sent me to the Edison Electric Illuminating Co., of Brockton, Mass., and there I spent two years in various lines of work, laying the foundations for an engineering knowledge. In 1909 I took charge of a couple of towns whose lighting properties the company had just purchased, and at the same time I began a two-years' course in electrical engineering at the Lowell Institute. It was a stiff proposition, but ideal training, as the study supplemented the practical work of the day.

"After finishing the course I returned to the central office as assistant electrical engineer, and at the start of the present year I am still with the Brockton Edison Co., but now as electrical engineer in charge of the construction, distribution and maintenance of the system which supplies light and power to about a dozen towns in southeastern Massachusetts.

"Meantime, by far the most important thing for me is that in the fall of 1912 I married Helen Dill, of Newton Centre."

Is a landscape architect. Writes: "Training in landscape architecture led me on graduation to seek practical experience in the office of Charles A. Platt in New York, where I came in contact with the best of American architecture. After a year in this connection I spent a summer at the Arboretum and the winter following in the Olmsted office. A year hence I spent a few months at the University and began to specialize in branches of landscape architecture relating to town planning, becoming after a short interval an associate with John Nolen, whose office headquarters are in the Post-Office Building, at Harvard Square.

"The spring following I went abroad, going straight to Italy and Rome and finding the best of Europe in the ruins of Vesuvius, in the Eternal City, and in the hill towns of Umbria. I crossed the Simplon and climbed the valley of the Visp to Zermatt—a wonderful walk of seventy-five miles—in three days. Then I went to Germany, to France and to England, spending two months in London studying under London University at Hampstead, recent examples of English town planning.

"This was a year ago, and since then I have spent most of my time in the South where the cities are at an exceedingly interesting stage of awaking. With a new impulse in developing natural resources of the country they are reaching out for park systems and a plan of streets more adapted to the needs of modern traffic. Residential suburbs especially, are extending to provide rapid increase of population, and there is reason to believe that these cities where conservative judgment and good taste have always existed will develop as finely as any in the country. These are my first six years since graduation. I am out for town planning and a more thoughtful development of modern cities."

Is a patent lawyer. Writes: "After leaving college I accepted a position as editorial assistant at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D. C., as the last thing that was offered to me at the time. Went there and took and passed civil service examinations for the position of examiner in the United States Patent Office, and left the Smithsonian for the Patent Office in July, 1908. That fall I entered the afternoon classes of the George Washington University Law School and attended classes for three years along with my work in the Patent Office. I received the degree of Bachelor of Law in 1911, and started in graduate work in Patent Law, but left Washington and the Patent Office in November, 1911, to take charge of the patent work of the Ingersoll-Rand Co., manufacturers of mining machinery, at 11 Broadway, New York City, being associated legally with the office of Macfarlane & Monroe, 26 Liberty street. I became a member of the New York Bar in October, having passed the June examinations. "About two years after the death of my mother I was married to Miss Ruth Irwin of Erie, Pa. Shortly after my marriage I left the National Acme Manufacturing Co., and engaged in the advertising business with my brother. I had been in this business less than a year, however, when my old firm wanted me to return to them. This offer was very welcome inasmuch as I felt the branch of advertising I was then in scarcely progressive enough, and moreover I should have the opportunity of working under an exceptionally able advertising manager, so I accepted it. I have been there ever since. I have not been back to Cambridge since June, 1906, although I have made many plans to do so which have always been frustrated at the eleventh hour. It was particularly galling to my spirit to miss the Triennial, and everything points to my missing the Sexennial. However, unless something unforeseen occurs (and I have my fingers crossed), the Decennial will find me there."

Is a lawyer. Writes: "I completed the requirements for my degree at Mid Years of senior year and from then until shortly before Class Day worked for the Saddle Mountain Mining Co., at Christmas, Arizona, in various capacities of unskilled labor.

"In the fall following our graduation I went to the University of Berlin with Hermann Hagedorn '07. While there we founded the Harvard Club of Berlin and led a very enjoyable though dignified existence. That winter and spring I spent travelling in Egypt, Italy and Greece. In the fall of 1908 I entered the Columbia Law School where I took the Beck prize in Real Property Law.

"While travelling and during vacations I wrote a novel, 'The Up-Grade,' which was published by Little & Brown, in 1910. That same year I left the law school on account of illness and, after a trip to Europe, entered the law office of Stover & Hall, 60 Wall street, New York, as a law clerk.

"In January, 1912, I went into partnership with John Reynolds, '07, under the firm name of Reynolds & Goodwin, at 2 Wall street, New York City. Things have gone very prosperously with us and we are doing our best to keep up the reputation of the class.

"I have belonged to Squadron 'A,' N. G. N. Y., for several years since settling in New York, and have tried to fill in my spare time with various other interests and amusements, but

Is a social worker. Writes: "Immediately after graduation I went to Japan where for three years I taught English to Japanese boys in the First Commercial School of Kyoto. Meanwhile in vacations I travelled extensively in Japan, Corea and China. I returned to America in 1910 via the Indian Ports and Europe. The following winter I spent in Louisiana. In July, 1911, I undertook placing out work with the Boston Childrens' Aid Society. One year later I began similar work in Berkshire County, Mass., for the New England Home for Little Wanderers and the Mass. Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. In addition to finding homes for orphan and dependent children, I also have frequently to prosecute cases of neglect involving minor children."

Is in the U. S. Diplomatic Service. Writes: "Before graduating from Harvard became recipient of scholarship for a post-graduate course at the École des Sciences Politiques, at Paris; there I studied for one year, specializing in international law and documentary diplomatic history. In order to follow this course I had had to decline the position of private and confidential secretary to our Ambassador to Japan, but, upon the termination of the year's course, this post being again offered to me I accepted, and served in that capacity from September, 1908, to February, 1909, returning to the United States to take the examination for entrance into the Diplomatic Service, on Feb. 26, 1909. On August 5th of that year I was appointed third secretary of the Embassy in Paris, serving there until October, 1910, when I was detailed in the Division of Latin American Affairs of the Department of State until Jan. 31, 1911. I was then appointed secretary of the Legation at Managua, Nicaragua, and left at once with the Minister to renew diplomatic relations with that country, which had been ruptured since March, 1909, and to put through the elaborate program of reconstruction for which our good offices had been solicited by the Nicaraguan Government, including a complete financial reorganization, the adjustment of claims both foreign and native dating from the beginning of the Zelaya regime, and the reassertion of our informal influence in the solution of the thousand and one difficulties facing the Government which had arisen from the ashes of the Zelaya Revolution. From June 22, 1911, to Jan. 18, 1912, I was alone at that post as chargé d'affaires.

"On Feb. 1, 1912, I was appointed secretary of the Legation at Lisbon, and served as chargé d'affaires through the month of August of that year. I was then appointed second secretary at the Embassy at Rio de Janeiro, where I am now stationed."

Born at Staten Island, New York City, July 18, 1882.

Prepared for college at Hill School.

Permanent address, Sunnytop Farm, Fairfield, Conn.

Is a writer. Writes: "I have traveled a good many miles since Class Day, 1907, but whether I have gone in a circle I can't as yet say. After graduation I went abroad, toured Switzerland with Douglas Field and Johnnie White and studied long enough at Berlin University to help Wilder Goodwin and others launch (the word is carefully chosen) the Harvard Club of Berlin, and to publish a one-act play in verse, 'The Silver Blade.' In the spring of 1908 I returned to civilization and on June 6 was married to Dorothy Oakley, of Englewood, N. J. We began married life in a tent in Colorado, fled thence to the banks of the Rhine, and thence again to New York, where I did some work at Columbia University. That winter 'The Woman of Corinth,' a story in verse, appeared and disappeared somewhat like the flowers of the field that wither and are cast into the oven. In February, 1909, I read a Lincoln centenary poem in Philadelphia, before the Pennsylvania Commandery of the Loyal Legion; and in May, the Harvard Dramatic Club produced two one-act plays of mine, 'The Horse Thieves,' and 'Five in the Morning.' Between these two incidents happened the greatest event of the six years under consideration, for on March 16, our daughter, Mary Oakley Hagedorn, was born.

"October, 1909, saw the publication of 'A Troop of the Guard and Other Poems,' which was received, on the whole, better than it deserved; and the following February the production at the New Theatre of 'The Witch,' an adaptation of a Norwegian play. This failed dismally, for it was a dismal play with unreal passions and unreal horrors. More successful was 'The World too Small for Three,' a one-act given in vaudeville in Boston, and 'Marvelous Bentham,' given by the Harvard Dramatic Club, which, although unreal and stagey, was at least not gloomy. Meanwhile, I was teaching composition at Harvard and gaining a liberal education assisting B. W. in Comp. Lit. 1.

"The summer of 1910 was made interesting by the MacDowell Pageant in Peterborough, for which I wrote the lyrics to music by MacDowell. The autumn brought a second and even more stimulating year of teaching and considerable writing, of which, however, only 'The Delectable Forest,' produced by the Idler Club at Radcliffe, in May, 1912, escaped the scrap-basket. In June I ended my connection with the college, and with my family spent half a year abroad. On our return we went West and lived for six months in a bungalow on a hilltop outside of Santa Barbara.

"We are back East now, living on a farm of our own in Fairfield, Conn. Oxen till our fields, cocks crow and Mabel the Cow gives us milk twice daily. Our main occupation, when not hunting for eggs which the hens have failed to lay, is dodging liens filed against us by the creditors of a bankrupt contractor. I, for one, should be rapidly forgetting that such a thing as literary endeavor exists, were it not for the yellow envelopes that occasionally bring me a clipping of faint praise for a book of 'Poems and Ballads' published last fall. Life is very livable, for a time, at least, without the printed page or the pen. Meanwhile, I can hear the rye growing apace on the slope beneath the house."

Is a physician. Writes: "Having entered Harvard Medical School in the fall of 1906, I continued after receiving my degree from the college, to pursue my studies in medicine. Though I had chosen the medical profession for my life work largely by the elimination of other vocations, I liked my work very much, especially the last two years in medical schools, which comprised chiefly instruction and experience in the hospitals. The summer after my graduation from medical schools my father, who was in good health and vigor, was fatally injured in an automobile accident. On account of having been away from home so many years I did not feel his loss so keenly at the time, as I did later when I started to practise, handicapped with the debt of my education, from which my mother would have absolved me if my father had not been killed.

"At the close of that summer I began my hospital service at the Worcester City Hospital. My life there, though necessarily confining, was most enjoyable as well as interesting, on account of the congeniality of my colleagues and my duties. The training, which was both medical and surgical, was very profitable. Though we lacked the instruction that hospitals in medical centers afford their internes, we were intrusted with almost entire responsibility for our patient. I was loath, even after eighteen months, to give up the life of the hospital, where the practice of medicine most nearly approaches the ideal.

"In June, 1912, two months after having finished my hospital training, I opened my office in Worcester—the saddest day of my life. The transition from the activity of the hospital work to the inactivity of an inchoate physician was so great as to plunge me into a melancholy mood, which persisted for several months. By the end of my first fiscal year, however, I expect to have a little balance above my expenses to go towards clearing my indebtedness for my education."

the Municipal Building of the City of New York. McKim, Meade & White won this competition and shortly afterwards I entered their office and worked for them on drawings of the Brooklyn Art Museum—a building which had been built in sections, and of which no complete drawing had ever been made. During the year 1909 ill health compelled me to drop work. I finally got started again and spent two years in the office of Trowbridge & Livingston, architects, where I was lucky in being allowed to do a good deal of the detail work on the Bankers' Trust Building, in New York City. Last summer I spent in the office of A. W. Brunner, working on the competition drawings for the Missouri State Capital. Shortly afterwards I was obliged to come West, leaving architecture alone for a while. I am still uncertain whether in several months I shall return to New York, or begin work here."

Is a teacher. Writes: "I signed off at the college office April 24, 1907, in order to accept an appointment as assistant in the Philippine Civil Service. I left Boston April 26, 1907, traveling via Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Honolulu, Yokohama and Nagasaki to Manila, arriving there on May 31st. I was assigned by the Civil Service Commission as supervisor of industrial training in the Province of Albay (Sloyd work, cabinet-making, etc., being a former vocation). I served two school terms from June to April of each year, resigning in June, 1909.

"While in the Philippine Islands I learned the Bicol dialect (spoken by more than 1,000,000 natives) and improved my Spanish knowledge. I found the country exceedingly rich in natural resources—agricultural, mineral and forest—the climate agreeable and healthful, the natives courteous, eager to learn, and socially and economically centuries behind us (i.e., they believe firmly in witchcraft, etc., and their open-air theatres and scenery are like those of the 16th century in England; their crafts are still in the 'family' stage, etc.); the young Americans of an eager, earnest type striving optimistically to do their duty in carrying out the altruistic policy propounded by President McKinley; finally, the natural scenery unsurpassed in beauty and variety in my trip around the world—words are too futile except to recommend a visit to the San Juanico Straits, Mount Mazon, and the terraced range of Benguet, before applying the superlative to any seascape or landscape below the snow line. While in the islands I had some very interesting experiences. I hunted deer and wild boar in Luzon with primitive weapons in 1907. In 1908 I spent two weeks among primitive Negritoes, a race of pygmies, who had not spoken with a white man before. On Jan. 1, 1908, I was shipwrecked at Sagnay.

"I returned to Boston via Singapore, Colombo, Bombay, Suez, Mediterranean ports, and London. From September, 1909, to February, 1910, I was registered in Harvard College, obtaining my degree then 'as of the Class of 1907.' During 1910 I did some tutoring in this country and in England, where I had the experience of being the only American to watch the funeral of King Edward VII from the Round Tower of Windsor Castle. In September, 1911, I took up the duties of a sub-master in the Brockton High School, teaching Spanish, History, French and Latin.

"From February to June, 1912, I was again enrolled in Harvard University, as a member of the Business School of Administration, in order to study commercial conditions in South America. During this period I joined the S. A. E. Fraternity. The last two years have been poor in excitement, but rich in opportunities for useful service, so that I feel they are the best years since my graduation.

"I am a member of the Harvard Clubs of the Philippines, Mystic Valley, and of Medford; University Club of Brockton, Mount Hermon A. F. & A. M.; Medford Club; Massachusetts Schoolmasters Club, S. A. E. Fraternity and several other social and educational clubs."

Is in insurance. Writes: "After allowing Harvard to decorate me with a 1907 degree I entered the Mass. Inst. of Tech. for additional work in engineering. I obtained a degree from there in 1910, and at once 'accepted a position' (I worked like the Dickens for that job), with the E. R. Thomas Motor Co., in Buffalo, N. Y. After paying my enormous salary for about six months the firm could no longer stand the strain on the financial department and went into the receivers' hands. To help them out I resigned and then obtained the position of chief draughtsman and designer with the Mercer Motor Co., at Trenton. For about two months I vegetated in that antediluvian city. The chief engineer of the Mercer Co. and I did not hit it off very well, as each felt that he knew more than the other, but I was bigger than he was and cowed him with my eagle eye until he basely enlisted the aid of the general manager. This flank attack threw my forces into confusion, and, following Caesar's example, 'I fell back to a better position' by resigning, thus beating the Chief to it by about twelve hours. Feeling that the effort of living in Trenton so long had entitled me to a vacation I then left for California in March (1911), where I spent about three months chasing the elusive job. As I ranged the coast from Vancouver, B. C., to Los Angeles, one must admit that I was thorough in the matter. But up to June I found no one sufficiently appreciative of my ability, although I did have an opportunity to go with the engineering department of the great Los Angeles Aqueduct. However, as I hoped to be married that year, and as such a position would entail living on the Mojave desert, not much place for an Eastern woman, I had about decided to pass up the offer when I received a letter from the chief engineer with whom I had worked at the Thomas Company, asking me to join him as his assistant with the Pennsylvania Auto Motor Co. at Bryn Mawr, Pa. That settled it, and I packed my bag and flitted. After being with the Auto Motor Co. about a month and a half, and realizing that like old Sam Hicks, 'the automobile business wa'nt what it used ter be—and never wuz,' I took the chance which came to me of entering the claim department of the Employers' Liability Assurance Co. in Philadelphia. Here I still am, having now reached the task of handling the automobile claims. And I'm 'laying pipes' to locate in Boston in the same business before long, in order to be nearer the scene of activity in the 1907 reunions."

Is a salesman. Writes: "I was hired by the Library Bureau, manufacturers of office, bank and library furniture and systems, immediately after obtaining my degree. I had worked for that company in various capacities before entering college, and during vacations afterwards. Mostly because I had learned something about steel, in the University, they attached me to their plant up on the Hudson River, opposite West Point, where they manufactured steel furniture and fittings for banks and libraries. I had that old familiar 'manager's assistant' berth—the manager being an old Worcester Polytech man—grouchy, able and overworked. We were all overworked in that plant—it was days, nights and Sundays for all hands. In the fourteen months of my stay there, we had some results, however. I was able to save enough to get married. We went through a five months' strike in that little town—the Savage automatic in my pocket was my best friend most of that time. And finally, the business of the factory became so great that the plant was outgrown—a new factory was built in Ilion, N. Y., and in the early spring of 1910 we moved the factory equipment, the workmen, their families and all their household goods to that town. It was characteristic of my grouchy boss that all this was accomplished without any accidents, or serious sickness to any of the three hundred people involved.

"The new factory was too good to be true—we progress too smoothly. Like a bolt from the blue came the news in the fall of 1910 that the company was in financial distress—that the management had changed hands completely—that the steel furniture plant would be closed down temporarily if not permanently. It was all true. I got mine, in company with about half of the other people in the whole organization.

"I immediately found employment with the R. Hoe Co., of New York. That was a hard experience. I was never able to determine just what they had taken me on for. I suspect that they imagined a man of my education and experience ought to be able to create a place for himself in that huge and complex plant. But I couldn't produce the goods and in February I was again hunting a job.

"I had been considering the selling game for some time, My father was New England manager of the Platt Iron Works Co., and he gave me a job. He was a hard man to work for, a bit strict, and an unsparing critic, but he was—and is— a gorgeous fighter, a good engineer, and a salesman of forty years' experience. The company went into the hands of receivers that summer, but we sold enough to make both ends meet—and that in conservative New England, too.

"Finally I had an opportunity to enter the employ of the International Steam Pump Co. It presented a wider future and a somewhat better furnished present and my father was the first to advise me to grasp the opportunity. That is all, to date. Week days I eat, drink, and sleep pumps, condensers, engines, and the rest of the manufactures this concern produces. Saturday afternoons and Sundays belong to the lady and the babies. And it is a good life."

Is a lawyer. Writes: "I went to the Harvard Law School and graduated in 1909, having passed my New York bar examinations in January of that year. In the autumn of 1909 I began to practise law in New York as a clerk with the firm of Wing, Putnam & Burlingham, which later became Burlingham, Montgomery & Beecher. On May 1, 1912, I left that firm to start practice for myself in partnership with Schuyler M. Meyer, under the firm name of Meyer & Henshaw. We have our offices at 27 Cedar street, New York City, and are happy with a growing practice. Having thus far escaped the snares or blessings—I shall leave it to the wedded mates of the good ship 1907 to say which—of matrimony, I am living in care-free, bachelor comfort at 4 West 53rd street.

"For interests outside of business I have joined our local political organization and am a captain of one of the election districts of my assembly district. In November, 1909, I joined Squadon A and have enjoyed the exercise, camps and manoeuvers and the friends I have made there, and I hope to remain enlisted for some time to come. I also have a troop of Boy Scouts, with whom I have weekly meetings and whom I take on camping trips in the spring and summer.

"The other features of my career are not, I fear, sufficiently salient to warrant the telling."

dealing with nutrition. The first year or so was spent in developing a new sort of calorimeter for use with the calorimetric bomb. Since then my work has been more of a physiological nature, having to do largely with a study of respiration in human individuals. A research was made and published on the effect of breathing air containing a high percentage of oxygen. In the winter of 1910-1911, I spent four months in different physiological laboratories in England and Denmark, learning the methods of studying respiration and blood. At present, I am studying the effect of various factors upon the respiratory center, especially as met in conditions of acidosis (found in cases of diabetes)."

Is a writer. Writes: "The first three years after graduation I spent at the Columbia Law School, where I was on the staff of the 'Law Review.' I was admitted to the New York Bar in the spring of 1910. But by that time my indifference to the law had developed into positive dislike, and the day after graduating from Law School I became a cub reporter on the New York 'Globe.' Before I left it, less than a year later, I had had a taste of all the experiences that fall to the lot of a Metropolitan reporter—from investigating false alarms of fire to interviewing Thomas Edison and his latest inventions.

"Since leaving the 'Globe' I have done writing of various sorts, chiefly for magazines. The election in November, 1911, of Rev. Dr. Lunn as Mayor of Schenectady, gave me the opportunity which, as a Socialist, I valued highly, of observing the workings of the first Socialist city administration in the East. On the first of January, 1912, I accepted the position of editor of the Schenectady 'Citizen,' the local Socialist weekly.

Is a railroad clerk. Writes: "In the fall of 1907 I worked in the New Rochelle Water Co.'s office in New Rochelle. Unfortunately I developed a severe case of jaundice in December and was obliged to go away during the winter of 1908. I spent some time traveling in the South and on my return in June to New York, took up railroad work. I was forced to take up my residence in Rochester, N. Y., where I have been ever since, working for the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Railway. I have kept up working for the company more as a training in business than as a life work. The great number of positions I have held has enabled me to get a very good insight into a number of businesses, and a general idea of human nature. I have, however, not confined my efforts entirely to railroad work, and have become interested in outside companies. Several times I have left Rochester for long trips, but the great majority of my time has been spent there. On the whole, my existence during the past five years has been uneventful, and I regret to state that I cannot give my classmates any important facts concerning my life, as nothing has happened worthy of comment."

Is a landscape architect. Writes: "Began work in the fall of 1907 as landscape architect in the office of E. L. Beard, Milk street, Boston. Quit about March 1, 1908, and formed partnership with C. E. Ebert, H. '06, and opened an office at 9 Park street, Boston. Our chief capital was nerve and ideas. Ebert got the notion that he wanted to get married in the fall of 1908, and decided that landscape architecture was a slow game, so quit. I continued the business until the following fall, and then accepted my present position as superintendent for E. W. Burd, landscape architect, of Clinton and Worcester, Mass. If a man is satisfied with a good living and lots of enjoyment out of his work landscape architecture, to my mind, is an ideal profession. It's a slow game to build up unless you've got plenty of capital and social pull, but money is really of little importance after all in life. At present I am at work on the development of a large tract of land for working men. We are designing the entire area—providing houses, churches, stores, playgrounds and park spaces."

Is a statistician. Writes: "Immediately after class day, 1907, I sailed for Europe and spent three months touring through France, England and Wales. On my return I entered the employ of Messrs. Arthur S. Leland & Co., as assistant to the office boy. After serving in various capacities I entered the employ of Messrs. Allen Arnold & Co., members of the New York and Boston Stock Exchanges, in 1910, and at present have charge of their statistical department in addition to handling my own line of customers.

"I am entering on my fifth year of service in C Co. First Corps of Cadets, M. V. M., with the rank of Sergeant. During this time I have played on the football team and been captain the past two years. Our annual game with Battery A Thanksgiving morning has become quite a feature and usually draws about 30,000 people. In addition, I have been captain of the hockey team.

"I was married June 1, 1910, to Helen Darrow, of Dorchester, and settled in Newton Centre, where I am still living. On Oct. 31, 1911, Hallowe'en, our daughter Barbara was born, weighing eight and three-quarter pounds, and she has kept up the good work to the present time. Last year I joined the Boston Chamber of Commerce and have been actively interested in the trade extension movement—particularly with reference to South America. At present I am endeavoring to secure an appointment in the Consular service of the United States in order to get in the field and work from the other end."

Was admitted to the practice of law by passing the examinations of the State Bar Association and State Supreme Court on Jan. 13, 1910. Have been practising law in New Orleans since.

"In 1908 was one of the organizers of the Tulane Society of Economics, and have been its secretary-treasurer since the Society's organization. The first president of the Society was Morton A. Aldrich, Professor of Economics of Tulane University of Louisiana, who is a Harvard man. This organization has, perhaps, the best standing of any scholarly society in this section of the country.

"I have been active in fraternal circles, being a Past President of Gulf Lodge No. 221 of the Independent Order of B'nai Brith, and a Past Worshipful Master of Jefferson Lodge No. 191, Free and Accepted Masons; both lodges in New Orleans. I am a thirty-second degree Mason and Second Ceremonial Master in Jerusalem Temple of Ancient Accepted Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. Am also a member of the Order of the Eastern Star.

"I am a member of the Harvard Club of Louisiana and of the Alumni Association of the Tulane University of Louisiana, having received the A. B. degree of the latter in 1906.

Is a reporter. Writes: "Leaving Cambridge in September, 1907, I came to Cleveland to accept a place in the Young Men's Christian Association. This position I resigned in the following May, to assume charge of settlement house in Cleveland.

"Convinced that my work lay in a different field, I began, November, 1908, to learn the open hearth steel manufacture, in the Newburg Steel mill, part of the American Steel & Wire Co. For nearly two years I worked here, twelve hours a day at hard labor. Because of business depression in the spring of 1910, I, with many of my fellow employees, was told to find another job. During that summer I fired a locomotive for the Pennsylvania Railroad.

"In December, 1910, I obtained a position on the reportorial force of the Cleveland 'Plain Dealer,' where I am at the present time.

"I am still a bachelor, although by the time this report leaves the press I hope to have a wife. I expect to marry a Cleveland girl in June."

CHARLES FABENS KELLY. Son of Augustus H. Kelly and Julia Kelly.

Born at Boston, Mass., Oct. 18, 1885.

Prepared for college at Roxbury Latin School.

Business address, University of Illinois. Residence, University Club, Urbana, Ill. Permanent address, same.

Is an instructor in design. Writes: "Finished work for my A.B. in June, 1906, and studied portrait painting with Dr. Camp till the next February, when I went into the Copley Society Classes, the advantage being that I could do as I pleased (questionable advantage). Worked for a year on the Boston 'Herald, Record and Advertiser,' doing Federal Court work particularly, and working as assistant to a painter friend of mine on the outside. Helped paint some decorations which had the advantage of being large, anyhow. Came out to Illinois to see if I would like teaching, in the fall of 1908, and like it well enough to stay. I have specialized in design, and published a book on it, with Mr. L. Morrill, 1902, last fall (Houghton Mifflin). That is about all, with the exception of having had the pleasure(?) of serving as secretary of the Harvard Club of Eastern Illinois for two years, and acting as representative to the Associated Clubs. My chief regret was being kept away from the Triennial. By the way, I have exhibited a couple of decorations at the Art Institute, Chicago.

"Have been secretary of the College Art Association for three years."

Born at New York, N. Y., Feb. 5, 1886.

Prepared for college at Boys' High School, Brooklyn.

Business address, Western Electric Co., 463 West St., New York, N. Y. Residence, 44 Monroe Place, Brooklyn, N. Y. Permanent address, same.

Is an electrical engineer. Writes: "Upon leaving college I entered the employ of the Western Electric Co., and have been with them ever since, in the engineering inspection dept., shop, repair inspection dept., switchboard installation dept., and finally, in the engineering apparatus design dept., where I am at present located and where I hope to remain for some time.

"Shortly after leaving college I enlisted in the 23rd Regiment, Infantry National Guard, N. Y. After two years' service I was transferred to the 3rd Battery Field Artillery N. G., N. Y., in which organization I am now serving as sergeant, with bright prospects of becoming a 2nd lieutenant shortly. In this organization I have learned how to ride a horse and shoot a revolver, two useful accomplishments. However, the work here keeps me in good shape, and I get a lot of enjoyment out of it, as I am very fond of horses. I am the veteran of two army manoeuver campaigns and a State camp tour at Massachusetts, Connecticut and Peekskill respectively.

"During the summers since leaving Harvard I have taken a number of canoe trips on the Sabago Lakes, in Maine; up the Hudson from New York to Albany in one week; over 200 miles on Long Island Sound and along South Shore of Long Island in two weeks and on the Fulton Chain of Lakes in the Adirondack Mountains. Have also done considerable gunning on Long Island and on Chesapeake Bay.

"I have done some studying at Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, at night, during the past few years, which has helped me in gaining practical knowledge of machine construction, tool and die making, and forge and foundry work which I did not get at Harvard. This practically sums up my history since 1906. I haven't accomplished anything remarkable, or revolutionized the world, but I have managed to keep in good health and spirits and to keep in touch with the activities of the University in its various branches, and I seldom fail to be on hand to cheer for any Harvard team or individual who comes to New York for contests of any sort."

Is in the advertising department of the North Plymouth Cordage Co., Plymouth, Mass. Writes: "Following graduation I took a vacation until August 1, 1907, when I began as a clerk in the transfer department of the Old Colony Trust Company, Boston, Mass. I remained here until February 1, 1908, when I went as salesman with Allyn & Bacon, Boston, publishers of high school and college text-books. My work with these people was almost entirely outside work and covered Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut. During my connection with Allyn & Bacon I made my home first in Newtonville, Mass., and afterwards in Wollaston, Mass., to which place my family moved.

"December 1, 1910, I moved to Philadelphia, where I worked with the Curtis Publishing Company, as district manager in the circulation department, in charge of the work of outside subscription representatives.

"January 15, 1912, I began my connection with the advertising department of the Plymouth Cordage Co., North Plymouth, Mass., manufacturers of binder twine and cordage of all descriptions. My present work consists largely of formulating advertising and sales plans and preparing house organs, booklets and trade paper advertisements."

Ostby & Barton Co.'s shop—makers of solid gold rings, and have been there ever since. This shop turns out about two million pieces of jewelry every year and I try to keep track of the pieces and see that we get a little more for the goods than they cost, as well as work up new lines of goods. I have not done much since I left college but work, and the time has slipped by for me very rapidly. I have seen some girls that I could live with, but none that I could not live without. I don't get out of Providence very often, about once a year to the Yale game and once or twice to New York and Chicago on business."

Is a teacher of mathematics. Writes: "After leaving Harvard I worked for a year with the Bausch and Lomb Optical Co., Rochester, N. Y., then received an instructorship at Barnard College, Columbia University, where I remained four years, and took the degree M.A. from Columbia University in 1910. The next year I received an instructorship at Washington University, St. Louis, Mo. I found it to my advantage, however, to drop teaching and finish out my graduate work in mathematics, so I entered Chicago University as a graduate student in mathematics last summer, and there I am studying at the present time."

Is a teacher. Writes: "The year 1907-08 I spent in the Graduate School of Harvard University, taking the degree of A.M. in June, 1908, in the Department of Geology. On July 30, 1908, I was married to Helen Murdoch, of Delaware, O., and we left at once for China, under appointment from the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Since that time I have taught physics and earth science in the Anglo-Chinese College at Foochow. In April, 1910, I was made superintendent of the Foochow Branch of the Methodist Publishing House in China. This responsibility has had to be borne in addition to the teaching of from three to five courses a semester in the college, but has been possible because of efficient Chinese help in the Publishing House. Two daughters have come to our home, one on Nov. 3, 1909, and the other on May 21, 1911."

Is with Stone & Webster. Writes: "In the summer of 1907 I entered the employ of Stone & Webster and after two years of accounting was transferred to the securities or banking department. As the firm are organizers as well as experts in the management of electric, railway, lighting and power properties, the work has always been interesting, in fact, quite engrossing. The remuneration for several years was hardly a living wage, but I think that the experience and training was

I received the degree of M. A. in French. In June, 1910 (I might mention a slightly important event, I was married in June, 1909), we sailed for France, where at the Université de Lyon I had received the appointment of Lecteur d' Anglais à la Faculte des Lettres. This had been secured through the support of certain members of the French and English departments at Harvard. After one year spent in French Universities I accepted a tutoring position which took me, during the following year, to Newport, St. Augustine, Fla., and to the mountains of Pennsylvania. In June, 1912, I was appointed instructor of French in the Phillips Exeter Academy, which position I now hold."

Is a teacher. Writes: "I spent the year after commencement in graduate study at the University, and received appointment as Charles Haven Goodwin Scholar in Classics for 1908-09; in connection with which I remember with especial pleasure a call on Professor W. W. Goodwin, the founder of this scholarship. Professor Goodwin was just back from a trip to Mexico City, full of stories, many of them on the climate, after a bad season. It was at this time that he got the illness from which he only partially recovered; so that our class was the last, I believe—pace the class of 1908!—to have anything like a year's consecutive instruction from this great scholar, not more eminent than beloved.

"During 1908-09 bad health made advisable a resort to the ancient and honorable pursuit of rustication. The winters of 1909-11 I was at the University engaged in work for the degree of Ph.D. in Classical Philology, much of the time in a study which I will, for the benefit of a small minority of the class describe Anglice as 'Pagan Saints.' Since graduation I have practised with enthusiasm President Eliot's most approved sport on one of the Plymouth County ponds, and have made some studies in American history of the pre-Revolutionary period. Since taking the degree in 1911, I have been teaching Greek and Latin in the College."

Prepared for college at Boston Latin School.

Business address, care of Boston Fruit & Produce Exchange, Boston, Mass. Residence, 814 Blue Hill Ave., Boston, Mass. Permanent address, 35 Hutchins St., Boston, Mass.

Is a merchant. Writes: "My first step in the business world was the seizing of an opportunity to gain some practical banking experience in the then newly formed Liberty Trust Co. I worked there until April, 1908, and then became associated as originally planned, with my father as the Boston connection of the firm of D. F. Littlefield, a firm established in 1861. My interests from that time on became more and more diversified, especially along the line of real estate. In May, 1910, I was elected president of the Joseph Warren Co-operative Bank of Roxbury, and we began business by establishing a new record for shares sold in a first series, a fact that will mean something to those interested in this work. The following year I became a trustee of the Hutchings Trust, so that, at present, while pretty busy, yet manage to get some little enjoyment out of life."

Is a broker. Writes: "I left college in my sophomore year, by advice of counsel, and went to work for Hayden, Stone & Co. When the Boston Curb Exchange started, I was sent out to execute orders for the 'house.' After the Boston Stock Exchange severed all relations with the curb, I elected to stay on said curb, and execute orders for Hayden Stone & Co. on a commission basis. When business is good I congratulate myself on having made a wise move, but when it is bad I kick myself for being so foolish. After I had been out of college a year, my father died, and I had to give up having a good time and tend to business, also falling in love with my future wife helped me towards giving up my ribald habits, acquired at college and afterwards. I got married on New Year's Day, 1910, and have lived happily ever since. We have an automobile, which helps to give us a bully old time."

Is a lawyer. Writes: "During my senior year I did the work required for the degree of A.M., which I received in 1908. I entered the Harvard Law School in the fall of 1907. During my third year in the Law School I was assistant instructor in Economics 21 in the college, and an editor of the 'Harvard Law Review.' I also did some law tutoring in my second and third years. In February, 1910, the New York fever struck me as it did many of my law school classmates, and an excursion to New York resulted in my securing a position with the law firm of Carter, Ledyard & Milburn. I went to work in September, 1910, and am still with the same firm. My work has been pleasantly varied and general, including some experience in admiralty. My chief interest outside of law has been music. While in college and law school I derived much pleasure playing the violin in various combinations of ensemble music. A year and a half ago I joined Squadron A of the N. Y. National Guard, now First Cavalry, but owing to pressure of business I have had to resign temporarily within the last few weeks. On Feb. 14, 1911, I was married to Judith Folger Longyear at Brookline, Mass. Am a member of the Harvard Club of New York and the Squadron A Club."

Writes: "Seated before a very delightful open fire in an English hotel, with a little hot toddy to help along, it would be an easy matter to think of many interesting details to weave into a story of my life since leaving college. Compared to most of my classmates, however, the thread is very slender and shall limit myself to a mere statement of the work I have done.

"The Massachusetts General Hospital, in Boston, kept me very busy from the time I finished my studies at the Harvard Medical School until 1912, when I went to New York to take up a special branch of surgery, namely, orthopedics, in the large 42nd street hospital for cripples.

"At present I worship at the shrine of Æsculapius in Liverpool, where Mr. Robert Jones, the greatest surgeon in my work of all England (and the continent) has taken me under his wing."

Writes: "On leaving college I had intended entering at once into the employ of Lee, Higginson & Co., of Boston, bankers, but owing to a slight breakdown in health did not actually go with them until October, 1907. After three months in the Boston office, I was sent into Rhode Island to work up a 'private-investor' clientele for them, and a few months later was given the banking field as well, taking complete and solitary charge of this territory, with headquarters in Providence. In the spring of the year just before the opening of the Seattle Exposition, ten of us were sent West to look over certain water power and electric properties, and visited Seattle, Tacoma, the Electron development of the Seattle Electric Co., where we were drawn up 500 feet in a cable car and sent around the mountain top in a motor-work car on the edge of a sheer 500-ft. precipice. We also visited Great Falls, going through the famous Boston and Montana smelter, Spokane, and Butte, Montana and vicinity, where we were entertained 2,200 feet below the earth's surface in the 'Original' mine and the 'Neversweat' mine. The whole trip, Boston to Boston, occupied just two and a half weeks, and we averaged five hours sleep during this period. In September, 1910, I left Lee, Higginson's employ to engage in private business of the same general nature. I am still happily unmarried.

the West, I decided that the experience gained from a year or so spent in roughing it would be worth while.

"I made Tucson, Ariz., my headquarters for a couple of months, taking in the towns of Bisbee, Tombstone, Globe and Silverbell, where a friend had interests, studying out the various methods used, and getting points on the working of copper mines.

"In Los Angeles I held down a position with the Southern Pacific R. R. for a while, later going to 'Frisco for the same company in the general audit office.

"The next move was to the mountains of California, in the mining district of Shasta County. I connected with a placer mining company and it was here that I did some work. The camp was in the wildest and roughest part of the mountains. Twenty miles in from the railroad over a mountain trail that was used by the 'forty-niners.' The work was hard, but fascinating; when the gold fever gets into the system it is hard to shake off.

"Game was plentiful and hunting trips were frequently made. Generally I went out with one of the miners, as they are excellent guides, are used to the ways of the wood, and stand ace high in the hunting game.

"Leaving California and the West after an enjoyable year it seemed good to get back to old New England where all the country was fresh and green again. In 1909 I started in auditing with the Boston & Maine Railroad, and am still connected with them."

"For three years, beginning 1906, I taught at the Franklin Evening School, Boston. While there I became interested in the matter of text-books for the non-English speaking people. The existing text-books were utterly inadequate for the purpose. I therefore enlisted the efforts of Dr. Samuel Starr, a classmate of ours, in the cause, and together we prepared a text-book which has practically been accepted by a large publishing house. I expect any day to get their final word. They accepted it a few months ago on condition that we make certain revisions. These have been made. If it is published the title of the book will, in all probability, be 'Practical English for New Americans.'"

Is an automobile merchant. Writes: "Since 1907, when our grand old class left the bosom of our Alma Mater to go forth and conquer the world, the writer had his full share of confidence in the ultimate results of his labors. His courage was great, and is still, but an almost consecutive series of illnesses, ranging from ptomaine poisoning to appendicitis, have somewhat dimmed the former glory of wealth's prospect—good health now seems much more to be desired and hoarded than any mere 'gold that glitters.' At present, after a rather trying siege, I am again (this drawn out recuperating process has become somewhat worn and frayed in the last five or six years) feeling an interest in life. Farming, as now, for the next six months, will give me, I hope, a sturdy stock of health. Then perhaps I'll go out again in pursuit of the elusive dollar, and all his larger and smaller relations, but farming has charm, try it yourself, and maybe I'll still 'farm it.' Is money worth what it costs in health and happiness to some of us? I don't know, but I guess not. If you are unhappy, or in poor health, get out on a farm, work hard all day, have some good reading to occupy your evenings, and at nine or ten o'clock you'll be ready and anxious to go to bed. Farming is not a good means of acquiring sudden wealth, nor is it a cure-all, but if you need a tonic, try it. And you'll grow in health and mind and spirit, and perhaps come to think that life in the city is the narrow one. Try tilling the soil for a living, it's probably good for you if you are at all out of sorts."

JOHN MOORE MORSE. Son of William H. Morse and Mary H. (Moore) Morse.

Born at Worcester, Mass., Dec. 5, 1885.

Prepared for college at Worcester High School.

Was in the bond business.

Died Oct. 12, 1909, at Worcester, Mass.

Morse was born in Worcester, Mass., Dec. 5, 1885, where he prepared for college. As an undergraduate at Harvard he was very prominent. He was president of the Crimson, captained the varsity tennis team, and was elected permanent secretary of the class. He was graduated in 1907, and immediately entered the New York office of Moffat & White, bankers. The same qualities which distinguished him in college rendered the rapidity of his rise in the bond business almost unprecedented. He passed through the various departments in the office, and was then sent out to sell bonds throughout New England. While engaged in this work he was taken with typhoid fever and after a lingering illness died in Worcester on October 12, 1909.

Jack Morse was probably more generally loved than any man in our class. In him an unusually handsome person and features were joined to a splendid character and the highest principles. He always stood uncompromisingly for what he believed to be right, yet his manners were so gentle, and his motives so unquestionable that he never aroused any personal antagonism. It was absolutely impossible to conceive of his ever doing anything mean or petty. He was a man literally without an enemy, not because of any weakness of character, but through the force of his wonderful personality. J. R.

of Stone & Webster Eng. Corp., 147 Milk St., Boston, Mass.

Is a constructing engineer. Writes: "After graduation I spent two years in the Graduate School of Applied Science, specializing in reinforced concrete design and building construction. I spent the summer at Hancock Pt., near Bar Harbor, where I became acquainted with and married Miss Bunker. In November of 1909, we crossed the country to Seattle, Wash., where I entered the office of the Stone & Webster Engineering Corp., as a draftsman. Here I found exceptional opportunities for advancement and for varied experience, having work designing factory buildings, office buildings, warehouses, apartments, flour mills, grain elevators, wharves, etc.

"In September, 1910, I was transferred to Portland, Oregon, as chief engineer of the Company's office there, but returned to Seattle again in November of the same year. At that time I purchased a lot in one of the residential sections of the city and proceeded to build a comfortable bungalow of the type very popular in the west and northwest sections of the country. During the spring and summer of 1911, I had charge of the design of White River Power Station, a reinforced concrete power house for a hydro-electric power development having an ultimate capacity of one hundred thousand horsepower.

"During the months of December, 1911, and January, 1912, I was 'loaned' to the architectural firm of Doyle, Patterson & Beach, of Portland, Oregon, designing for them the engineering details of two eight-story department stores and also the first two-story buildings of a magnificent group for the new campus of the Reed Institute on the outskirts of Portland. In February, 1912, I returned to the employ of Stone & Webster, and was transferred to Keokuk, Iowa, where I had charge of the design for the power-house and distributing stations for the Mississippi River Power Company, the largest hydro-electric power development in the world.

"Since October, 1912, I have been located in East Cambridge, as inspector and field engineer for the new steam-power plant being constructed by the Stone & Webster Engineering Corporation for the Boston Woven Hose and Rubber Company."

Is a real estate agent and broker. Writes: "I entered the banking business in the city of Boston after leaving college and continued at this occupation until I had gained sufficient knowledge to convince me that the work and interest was not the kind I wished to follow. In the early part of the year, 1910, I had an opportunity to travel throughout New England for a prominent engineering firm who were endeavoring to educate mill-owners, power-plant owners, and users of materials in manufacture, and teach them the advantage of efficiency in the purchase of supplies and reduction of waste in use of same. The work was intensely interesting, but owing to a great amount of missionary labor being necessary, the field held no great future and I looked to New York City as a place of more opportunities than anywhere else for the individual who was absolutely dependent upon his own resources and filled with plenty of enthusiasm and ambition.

"After carefully going into the possibilities in the City of New York, and studying conditions carefully, I considered the real estate field one of the most active and interesting that could be followed. I came to this city in Feb., 1911, and after learning the ropes and getting a foundation with the American Real Estate Co., I went with Douglas L. Elliman when he opened his own firm which was incorporated Jan., 1912. I am happy to say that my present selection and

Is a special agent, Children's Bureau, Dep't of Labor. Writes: "Work, sociological and statistical has been my agreeable lot since graduation. Entering the governmental service through civil service examination, I became engaged in the investigation begun in October, 1907, by the U. S. Bureau of Labor (now the Bureau of Labor Statistics) into the condition of woman and child wage-earners in the United States. As a special agent I was assigned to the study of the glass industry made under the direction of Ethelbert Stewart. In course of the field work in which I was occupied wholly, I made inspections and studies of factory and home conditions and earnings of employees in various branches of the industry and in different states.

"When this work was completed my next service was in another governmental investigation—that made by the Bureau of Labor into the telegraph and telephone companies. To gather data on the working conditions surrounding commercial telegraphers, their earnings, and other information, I was sent to Chicago and to cities west of the Mississippi.

"Having finished this occupation, I was transferred in January, 1909, to the Bureau of the Census where, after a few months in the editorial division, I became attached to the division of statistics of cities, for which I spent the greater part of the time in New England cities, in the compilation of the annual financial and physical statistics of cities having a population of over 30,000.

One of its principal functions is the conducting of a night school for the teaching of immigrants, chiefly Russian and Polish; and a part of my work was in taking classes there.

"Early in September, after a short vacation, I became a reporter on the New York 'Times.' Spent about three months at what they call 'emergency work,' which is to say, waiting about the office till three o'clock in the morning and going out on suicides and fires, etc. Then had another three months in covering various districts of the city, a branch of reporting which may be described as 'police reporting.' Then was assigned to cover the Criminal Building and the District Attorney's office—this was toward the end of Jerome's term. At the end of another six months I returned to the general staff of the 'Times' and went out on different assignments every day. Three or four months later, I was put on space, and so continued up to March, 1911. At that time I was planning to be married, and could not see how that could properly be done with the irregularities, as to time and place, of a newspaper man's life. I turned to publishing as being an allied business, and so having many of the features of the other, which I enjoyed. I got the position of advertising manager of the book department of Charles Scribner's Sons, publishers, of New York, and still hold it.

Permanent address, care of J. P. Morgan & Co., 23 Wall St., New York, N. Y.

Writes: "After graduating I came abroad for the summer, which I spent in the Alps most agreeably. I crossed many of the celebrated passes, such as the Gemmi, the Great St. Bernard, and the Monte Moro, which brought me to a pretty little Italian village called Macugnaga, nestled at the foot of Monte Rosa—the second highest mountain in the Alps. There I had the pleasant surprise of meeting some of my classmates, among them our class president, John D. White. I then worked up into Germany and made a stay at Kissingen (Bavaria) and at Wiesbaden, where I met our classmate H. Hagedorn, also later at Heidelberg where I saw something of the German student life; even witnessing one of their famous duels. The winter I spent at St. Moritz in the Engadine much enjoying the winter sports (skating, bobsleighing, skiing and skiing with a horse called skikjöring, which I was one of the first to do there. This sport has since taken much development. I then passed some months in Paris and in the spring of 1908, accompanied our classmate, Franklin M. Gunther, to Florence for a brief visit after which I went to London. The summer of 1908 I passed in the Engadine once more and the winter again in Paris. Colonel Charles Page Bryan, who was then our minister to Portugal, offered me very kindly to be his private secretary, but I was unfortunately prevented from accepting owing to family difficulties. The spring of 1909 I was still in Paris, during the summer I travelled in the south of France, making a prolonged stay in Biarritz, after which I made a five-months' trip in Spain. I stayed three months in Madrid acquiring a good knowledge of the language and then visited the South going as far as Morocco. The summer of 1910, took me to Germany again, and in October I returned to New York where I spent the winter. In March, 1911, I crossed to England and later to Paris on business. The summer was passed again in Germany. I returned to New York for the winter and was again called back to Paris last spring on business, although I was able to visit Belgium first. The summer again brought me to Germany and the autumn to Paris, where I have been detained ever since by business which I am endeavoring to conduct."

Is a farmer. Writes: "I have a farm of forty-eight acres here. I began work on the death of my grandfather Capen, whose place it was, in November, 1907. Owing to his advanced age (89) he kept only one cow at the time, and no horse. Now I have a horse, four cows, and a calf being raised. Have a small milk route for bottled milk, thus I get the full retail price for it. Sell small fruits of various kinds, potatoes, etc., around my route. Set one-third acre of currants in 1908. It was a sight to behold last summer. We picked 900 quarts of currants. The field showed a mass of Harvard crimson for a long way off. Bushes are set 4x6 feet and touch both ways. Have set an apple orchard and grape garden. Some of the shrubs about the place I grew from seed collected in

Is a lawyer. Writes: "I entered the Harvard Law School in the fall of 1907 and was graduated at the close of the course. During my law school career my father and mother both died, but my three brothers and I have continued to live together in Montclair at our old home. In August, 1910, I entered the law office of Louis F. Reed, in New York, and commenced the active practice of the law. I derived a great deal of benefit from my work there as well as pleasure from my associations with Mr. Reed, which were delightful. I was admitted to the New York bar in January, 1912. That same month Wilder Goodwin and I carried out a plan formed in the old Holworthy days, and formed a partnership to practice law together. The night we flipped a coin to determine the name of the new firm neither of us had any work to speak of upon which he could count. We decided, however, that the sooner we took the plunge, the better for both of us. We opened our office at 2 Wall St., New York, and have never regretted taking the step. We have been a good deal more fortunate in the matter of getting work than either of us anticipated, and our relations have been ideal. We work up our cases together and smoke each other's tobacco as we used to grind up on Gov. I together in the old days. Incidentally we run the 'downtown Harvard Club' in our office, and scarcely a day passes that some member of the class does not drop in to see us.

"In September, 1912, the luckiest year of my life was completed by my marriage to Katharine Barrows Hovey, of Summit, N. J. We live in Montclair, where it will always be a pleasure for us to welcome any members of the class. My recreations are mainly riding horseback and playing tennis, by which means I manage to keep pretty fit. Lately most of my time has been taken up with preparing the class report, and in reducing Ed Clark's tire trouble to one puncture and keeping Dole from telling about his adventures in Paris (see their lives). For the past two years I have also been secretary and treasurer of the Harvard Club of New Jersey."

went to the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. as a draughtsman in their marine engine department. I left them in June, 1909, to come to New York City, and with the exception of one summer spent in Boston, I have remained there up to a month ago. During this time I have been engaged in mechanical engineering for the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad, and have also done some work on the design of automatic machinery. On February 1st of this year (1913) I came to Canajoharie, N. Y., with the Beech Nut Packing Co. as an assistant to their mechanical engineer, Mr. H. P. Forté, another '07 man. I have not married nor have I had any experiences which I could consider as embodying 'salient features.' At present I am expecting to specialize on the design and construction of steam and hydro-electric power plants, which special branch of mechanical engineering I have been engaged on for about two and a half years. As soon as possible I hope to make my permanent home in New York City, unless professional opportunities elsewhere should be exceptionally good."

FRANKLIN HAVEN ROSS. Son of Waldo Ogden Ross and Ellen (Haven) Ross.

Born at Beverley, Mass., July 19, 1885.

Prepared for college at Noble & Greenough's School.

Died July 27, 1911, at Beverley, Mass.

Was an architect. Franklin Haven Ross was born at Beverley, Mass., July 19, 1885, the son of Waldo Odgen and Ellen Haven Ross. He prepared at Noble & Greenough's School, entering college and graduating with the class. Sophomore year he decided to take up architecture and continued work on that subject during 1907-08 in the graduate school. After an interval of about a year devoted to the management of family property, he entered the office of Mr. Clipston Sturgis, the Boston architect, for a few months' practical experience. During the summer of 1910, he traveled in England, and on his return home began professional work in Boston. He died at his summer home in Beverly, after a short attack of typhoid fever, on the 27th of July, 1911.

One only needed to know Ross slightly in order to recognize his charm in combining scholarly and artistic abilities and a gentle heritage, but intimacy served to bring out what one must call his innate goodness, for want of a more inclusive term. It was of a sort which never took a rest, wanted one, or seemed to need one, perhaps because it never made him a severe judge of others, or restrained his habitual generosity, which always appeared to exceed any possible imposition. Men at the architectural school with him, in particular, will not forget his ungrudging aid given so often at the expense of his own work, and they can appreciate more than others the tragedy of death coming before he had time to express his recognized skill in work quite worthy of it. His activity will be commemorated, however, by his collection of architectural books and photographs which have been given to the Institute of Technology and arranged in a way to perpetuate his generous use of them. Since a man is known by his library the future will not be silent in regard to him, and leave us to regret that, speaking for the past, the tribute due is greater than one can express. W. W. C.

Is a teacher. Writes: "I no sooner found myself alone on the stage than I was offered a chance to prove the superiority of a college-trained mind in the business world. I packed my carpet-bag and went to Cincinnati. Here, as a humble, but sportive clerk, I spent two uneventful years. Then, as my boss was too good-natured to fire me, I helped him out by resigning, and went West to seek my fortune. Failing to draw a number at the opening of the Flathead reservation, I tried fruit raising at North Yakima, gave this up for the exposition then in progress in Seattle, and finally came back as far as Oklahoma where, in a certain Kingfisher College, I found my destined calling as a teacher of Greek.

"Ten days after my arrival in Kingfisher I was an old inhabitant. I began to like even the wind, the dust, and the centipedes. More gradually and with greater pains I learned to 'keep my feet in the stirrups and my pants in the saddle.' I learned to lead in chapel with unction and assumed dignity. I learned to stand and hear myself called professor without cracking a smile. At the end of two golden years, without really thinking what I did, I bade an official farewell, scraped the bright red mud from my shoes and bought a ticket home to Mass.

"I now had the honor to be connected for a year with Phillips Academy in Andover. Returning as I did after a four years' absence, I was interested to make comparisons involving the spirit and social atmosphere of these parts. I also missed my thirty dollar pony. At any rate, this fifth year is marked by the brightest thing I ever did, for when school was over I went out to Nebraska and was married. For the present I am teaching school in Baltimore, Md. As usual, I find my work mighty congenial, but will say that I cordially hate living in the city."

order to make up a half C deficiency for my degree, but only received a D plus for my labors. I returned from Europe in November of the same year and started in the general insurance business with O'Brion & Russell, and at the same time took a course at Harvard in order to make up the half C deficiency for my degree. This time I was successful and the coveted parchment is now hanging on my wall.

"In June, 1908, my engagement to Jacquelyn J. Kelley, of New York, was announced and, on March 6, 1909, I was married to Miss Kelley in New York. After a short honeymoon of two weeks, I bought a modest place in Cambridge, Mass., in which I am still living. I have one child, a daughter, who was born June 30, 1910, the same day, by the way, that Harvard lost Yale somewhere in the vicinity of New London.

"I am still in the insurance business where I have met with more or less success and believe that next year I shall be able to sign the firm's name without affixing my initials to the signature. I might add that I am with the same concern, although it is now known as O'Brion, Russell & Co., having absorbed, last January (1912), four insurance houses, which absorption has given it second, if not first place, among insurance houses here in Boston."

Is an editor and teacher. Writes: "In the fall of 1907 I started graduate work in the department of German at Columbia University, but left in January to take a position as editor of a short-lived political weekly, 'The Cartoon.' Six months later I drifted into advertising as 'copy writer' for the Frank Presbrey Company. I had married in the meantime (June, 1908). In the fall of the same year I started a weekly newspaper in Nutley, N. J., that is running yet, and went back to my graduate work at Columbia where I had left it a year before. The newspaper has brought me all kinds of fun and trouble—everything, in fact, except financial return. I was instructor in German and French in Nutley High School from September, 1909, to June, 1910, incidentally surviving several political storms that broke out over the newspaper venture. I declined reappointment the following year, returning to Columbia as Carl Schurz Fellow in German and completing my residence requirements for the Ph.D. From Columbia I went to the University of Wisconsin as instructor in the German department. After a very pleasant year there I was appointed to a position in the United States Bureau of Education at Washington. This position I still hold. We live in a Mary-

Is a lawyer. Writes: "I entered Harvard Law School in the fall of 1907 and continued the routine of study, arguments and legal high jumping, hurdling and the rest of the mental gymnastics indulged in by the students who attend this grand old school.

"In the summer of 1910 I returned to Chicago, hoping to establish myself in that city and to devote my time to building up a practice in the law. After I had worn out my patience waiting for business. I decided that it would be better to sell my brains to one of the so-called big law shops. I succeeded in landing a job with Rubens, Fische & Mosser, the attorneys for the R. and I. German Consul in Chicago, and for the R. and I. Austro-Hungarian Consul. In this office I realized that there was a good deal of business for a German-speaking lawyer if he could get in touch with that class of people. Accordingly, in February, 1911, I opened an office in one of the outlying German districts—office hours from seven to nine-thirty every evening, and instead of the usual shingle, substituted the words 'Deutscher Rechtsanwalt.'

"They started to come in and last December this practice compelled me to decide to turn down the weekly insult of the big law shop and start my own offices. I am in politics, but one of the 'invisibles.' "

SIMON JONAS SHLENKER. Son of David S. Shlenker and Susie (Levy) Shlenker.

Born at Lexington, Miss., April 22, 1887.

Prepared for college at Boys' High School, New Orleans, La. and Tulane University.

Business address, 48 Cotton Exchange Bldg., New York, N. Y. Residence, 1730 Broadway, New York, N. Y. Permanent address, same as business.

Is a cotton broker. Writes: "I spent the three years after my graduation in and around New Orleans, learning the spot cotton business, being associated with my uncles, Messrs. M. Levy & Sons. During these three years, I lived part of the time on cotton plantations in the Yazoo—Mississippi delta—belonging to our firm, in order to get a knowledge of the 'planting' part of this business. I left New Orleans in March, 1911, and came to our New York office. Independently of my firm, I am also in the brokerage business, under my own name, and am largely and actively interested in the Guarantee Realty & Development Co., of New Jersey, and secretary-treasurer of the Pathe Frères Phonograph Co.

"I have devoted part of my time to settlement work on the lower East Side, and am at present on the Board of the Eman-u-el Brotherhood, and a member of several other institutions."

"In April, 1912, I moved to Rochester, N. Y., and am now living in my grandfather's old home. Incidentally I am still practising law. I am also an officer of four mining corporations, which are paying dividends. Am engaged in assisting in managing a grain farm in the Middle West which is spoken of in the Encyclopedia Britannica as the largest farm in the United States entirely under cultivation. (I am obeying orders and going into details—which include the fact that) I am a director in several banks; a trustee of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce, and to cap all, treasurer of the hospital, and superintendent of a Sunday School. I have three children."

In September of 1907 I left the P. R.R. Co., and went to work for the State of New York in the department of state engineers. At first I was assigned to the highway department and was located in Albany for about two months, after which I was sent out on construction work on highways. In this work I was located in various cities and towns in northeastern New York in the vicinity of Plattsburg. In August of 1908 I was transferred, at my own re-

Thence to New York, where I entered automobile machine shop, after eight months became salesman and then assistant manager. Agency for Charron (French) cars. Firm failed owing me money, but had planned to get married and did so, with prospects of position with present company. Ten days after wedding came direct to Roland Park, the finest suburb in America, and am trying to learn to develop suburbs after the manner of this one. Son fifteen months old weighs thirty pounds—one achievement worth while. Knocked home run in annual graduate game vs. Yale—the only other. Prospects bright and only regret is that I am practically cut off from all Harvard men whom I used to know except S. E. Thompson. Have never returned to Cambridge for reunions, because I have had to work and could not take holidays at will."

Prepared for college at Portland High School.

Business address, Rumford High School. Residence, 18 Prospect Ave., Rumford, Me. Permanent address, 23 Waltham St., Cumberland Mills, Me.

Is a teacher. Writes: "My first plunge into the business of life after that hot June week when every last one of us '1907-ers' got thoroughly 'baked' was as tutor to the children of Mr. F. W. Denton, superintendent of the copper mines at Painesdale, Mich. A quiet year there in that wintry clime enabled me to stay in spirit among the thoughts and ideals of college time

"The time for such repose was brief, however, as I began my career as a teacher of English the next year in Newman School, Hackensack, N. J. One year in a boarding school was sufficient for me and I moved the next fall to Brooklyn Polytechic Preparatory School, Brooklyn, N. Y. 'Coaxing' boys to learn and learn and learning for them were the principal qualifications for success here, and as I had neither ability nor inclination to excel in these directions, I again moved on.

"At this last move I arrived in Rumford, Me., taking a place as principal of the High School. There were problems to solve, but I was left to solve them and here I have remained until now. At present the school consists of 125 pupils, to teach whom I have seven assistants.

"My second year here I managed to persuade one of my teachers that travelling 'tandem' is the only way and we were married in December, 1911.

"The life of a teacher in my position is a delightful one. All I have to do is to teach nearly as much as my assistants, be my own office girl, take charge of and carry out all the outside interests of the school, furnish enthusiasm for new projects, persuade the school board that new things are sometimes wanted (though I have a good school board), be ready at all times to give a lecture or make a speech at the demand of the townspeople, write an article for the newspaper if asked to do so, continually 'kick' against a mechanics institute where our boys and girls spend too much of their time, all of which things are accomplished between six a. m. and ten thirty p. m. of the ordinary day. These matters attended to carefully, I usually 'turn in' and leave the rest of my duties to my assistants.

"Sometime, when the tide turns just right, I hope these things will be only a memory and I shall have a farm and become the 'improved scientific farmer.' Then, upon 'my Sabine farm,' I shall expect, like Horace:

To live among the fields a life of sweet, serene repose,
No longer beckoned here and there and led 'round by the nose."

Is a journalist. Writes: "Upon leaving college I became vividly impressed with the fact that I must earn a living in order to compete successfully with the high cost of living. I therefore emulated Horace Greeley and entered newspaper work, connecting myself with the New Haven 'Palladium,' a morning newspaper. One of my duties was to chronicle the happenings at Yale which, I need not say, was a painful task, and a duty which gave me but little pleasure. I endured that as long as was possible, and then, again emulating the aforesaid Horace, or rather following his advice to go West, I betook myself to Long Beach, California, a city 23 miles south of Los Angeles and fronting the Pacific Ocean and containing 30,000 souls (and heels), if the claims advanced by real estate dealers are to be believed. The police permitting, I have remained in Long Beach ever since, much to the dismay, no doubt, of the other residents. For two years I was connected with the Los Angeles 'Examiner,' as its Long Beach correspondent, and for the last two years I have been the correspondent of the Los Angeles 'Express' and the Los Angeles 'Tribune,' accepting with becoming modesty my weekly stipend.

"A year ago, or more accurately, on Dec. 7, 1911, a regularly licensed clergyman bound me with the bonds of matrimony, which bonds still shackle me. In due time I permitted the stork to pay me a visit, and now the matrimonial firm of which I am the senior partner, comprises three—wife, daughter of four months, and myself, and all doing well.

"I hope shortly to study law and also, after amassing a pile of screaming and golden eagles, to return East so that I can enjoy seeing John Harvard administer the boot to the Yale 'pup' whenever the blue bulldog attempts to bark or bite.

"I belong to the Southern California Harvard Club, the El Rodeo Club and the Long Beach Elks. (Under no circumstances will I accept the presidency of these United States)."

Is a sales manager. Writes: "Because of a lack of the necessary funds I was unable to return to school in the fall of 1905. I had expected to secure my degree in 1906.

"From June, 1905, until late in March, 1906, I worked successively as follows: Helper in automobile shop, Boston, $40 per month; chauffeur, Boston, $80 per month; switchman, Atlantic Coast Line Ry. yards, Savannah, Ga., $45 per month; foreman of night switching crew, Savannah, Ga., $70 per month.

"In March, 1906, I determined to start over again and build for the future. I came to Cleveland, O. I had no friends here who could be of assistance. However, through the Y. M. C. A. I secured, about April 1, 1906, office work in Cleveland at $40 per month. Very shortly I was sent out to sell securities. I have been selling securities ever since. To-day I have an acquaintanceship with probably 2,500 bankers in the States of N. Y., Pa., W. Va., Ohio, Mich. and Ind. About 250 of the banks, represented by 250 of these men, constitute my clientele."

Is a manufacturer. Writes: "On leaving college I started with Buffalo Weaving and Belting Co. in July, 1907. My knowledge of differential calculus caused me to be rapidly advanced to $4.80 a week. I then saved the mill owner's daughter from being bitten by a wild mosquito. For a time I thought I might win her, but she threw me down and her father, a profane old cock, kicked me out. I then started a Browning class at the mill and married a beautiful young girl with shell-like ears and pearly teeth. She was false in only one thing—her back switch. The firm on my wedding day gave me a raise to $8.33 a week. And then the little mouths began to appear around the breakfast table. It seemed as though there was a new face every morning and every face had a big hole in it to be closed up. I devised a system for keeping them all labeled and tagged. My employers took a fancy to it and raised me to $11.00. As I sit by the fire occasionally and sip a glass of 'Black Death' I cannot help but feel that all has not been in vain."

Is a lawyer. Writes: "For the next three years after college graduation I studied law at the Harvard Law School, graduating with the class of 1910 in June. The rest of that summer I spent in Europe, traveling more or less in the beaten paths, but finding keen enjoyment everywhere. I hardly need to say that I did not fail to witness a performance of the Passion Play.

"It was the last of September before I was spending good, American money once more, and then I went straightway to the office of Alden P. White, at Salem, for law business. As I had studied already in that office all through the summer vacation of 1909, my return was expected. From that time to date I have found the association with Mr. White profitable and enjoyable.

Writes: "I was married the year before I graduated, therefore my 'life' dates back a year earlier than the rest of the class. In 1907-08 I was '1G,' and to reward my faithfulness Dean Briggs gave me an 'A.M.' (for $20). I made a wonderful record as '1G.' I'm sure I did, for George Washington Cram wanted me to return as '2G' (bringing $150 with me), Probably the faculty appreciated what a wonderful '1G' I was and wanted me to return and take charge of some department, but they were too timid to speak about it, and so I wouldn't do it.

my arrival from Harvard in 1908 I found my friends agitated over the coming election for the State legislature. All of the candidates had declared against local option, and they saw it was plainly my duty to enter the race. They urged, gently at first, and finally came forth with promises of finances for campaign expenses. Immediately my star of destiny rose high above the horizon! I saw it and entered the race and picked off the nomination easily enough. Right when I was getting on 'fust rate,' something happened and two of the other nominees declared for local option. Then the sources of my finance dried up and my star of destiny got away without leaving its future address.

"The assembly following that election is a matter of history. It elected Lorimer, divided the 'jack pot' and passed around the 'bath tub fund.' Think how lonesome a Harvard man would have been in an assembly like that. Since making this political record I have been steadily widening my fame by a grand sequence of conquests, enquiring along the way if haply I may learn where that star went."

Is in business. Writes: "The first two winters after leaving college I spent in Cuba as second assistant chemist and chief chemist with the Cuban-American Sugar Co. of New York, on their plantations 'Tinguaro' and 'Chaparra,' Perico, Matanzas Province, and Chaparra, Oriente Province, Cuba. There I learned a good deal about the sugar business, acquired a smattering of the Spanish language, sacred and profane (but principally the latter); gradually became acclimated to the attacks of the ubiquitous 'Pulga,' and obtained in due course of time a high respect for hard work. The summer of 1907 and 1908 I spent tutoring and 'vacationing' on the Maine coast, and during the summer of 1909 I traveled in Europe. Returning in the fall of that year I went with Grinnell Willis & Co., of New York, cotton goods commission merchants, in their export department, and stayed with them a year, selling cotton goods to the West Indies, and to Central and South America.

"In October, 1910, I left the cotton business and started in with R. Hoe and Co., of New York and London, manufacturers of printing presses and printing machinery, and have been with them ever since in various capacities. At present my work is mainly in connection with the sale and installation of newspaper presses.

"In October, 1912, I became engaged to Miss Dorothy Pratt, of Pawtucket, R. I."

Is a real estate broker. Writes: "To counteract the effects of rather close application during my three years at Harvard, I spent the succeeding three years on the farm in Pennsylvania, cutting timber and trying to improve conditions there. While doing this I also prepared for the consular examinations, managing to pass, and was appointed in the summer of 1908, Consul to Maskat, Arabia. This post I was compelled to decline through concern for the health of my mother and sister, information being to the effect that women could not endure that hot, unwholesome port. In the fall of 1909 I settled in Washington, D. C., and but for about nine months spent in launching the dairy business on the farm, I have spent the time since then in doing real estate work. The dairy farming being a side issue whose chief requirement is a care that the monthly deficit be provided for promptly."

Writes: "I started as a reporter on the Boston 'Herald' in July after graduation, and continued until October, 1908, when I was transferred to the Sunday 'Herald' as writer for the magazine section. Went as reporter for the 'Herald' to the Republican National Convention at Chicago in 1908.

"In January, 1909, I became press agent for the Boston Merchants' Association. This organization was, in June, 1909, consolidated with the Boston Chamber of Commerce. I was assistant secretary of the new body until August, 1910, when I was made editor of the 'Chamber of Commerce News,' a weekly paper issued by the organization. Wrote a book on Boston, and several pamphlets.

"In April, 1912, I joined the advertising department of the

Is a bond salesman. Writes: "On completing the college course in 1906, I entered the Medical School, only to find out at the end of the first year that I had a balance on the wrong side in the health column, which made it advisable to knock off work for a while.

"In the fall of 1907 I went to South Carolina and spent the next few months playing golf and tennis and trying to get in shape for the next year's work. The following summer I spent on a ranch in Wyoming, living a rugged out-door life, sharing in the work of the ranch, most of the time in the saddle, but often driving a mowing machine or a thresher or harvester. I ended the summer with a trip through the West and Southwest, returning to the East in the fall to make new plans.

"At this time I entered Lee, Higginson & Co.'s office, where I stayed some months, later going for a year to the Boston office of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. While in

Is with Warner Sugar Refining Company. Writes: "After leaving college in 1905, I gained my first experience in the business line, in the manufacture of starch and glucose with the Warner Sugar Refining Company, Waukegan, Ill., where I started in to learn the art of affixing a postage stamp to a letter. After having mastered this and other office details, I was given an introduction to the mysteries of the sales department, and after having absorbed some of the details of this branch of the business, in merchandising corn products, I was detailed as assistant to the superintendent and there I gained my first real engineering experience. Later I was placed in the credit department and remained there until the company was absorbed by the Corn Products Refining Company.

"Early in the following spring I came to New York and made this city my residence, as the family had acquired property situated on the west bank of the Hudson River, at Edgewater, N. J., opposite West 130th street, New York. There I began receiving my initiation in the refining of sugar and building construction.

"In the winter of 1906 and 1907 I spent three months in California, looking after my grandparents and enjoying the balmy climate. The following winter I again visited California and on this trip I made the acquaintance of Miss Margherita Arkell and we became engaged the following fall and were married on Nov. 4, 1908. We then took up our residence on Riverside Drive, and to add to our happiness, in the natural course of events, Dudley Arkell Warner made his appearance in this world on March 15, 1911. From present indications he gives promise by his display of activity and vigor of becoming a good athlete and a Harvard man and should graduate about the time that Harvard College is celebrating its 400th birthday.

"Last fall I moved my little family to Sagamore Park, Bronxville, N. Y., Westchester County, and we found a very comfortable nest there, where we are always glad to welcome any of our friends."

Is an advertiser. Writes: "On completing my college course in 1907 I found that the faithful pursuit of such studies as Botany 1, Geology 4, and Latin 10, had not fitted me for any definite work of the world.

"I didn't want to be a florist—a geologist's lot looked extremely rocky and some one else had unearthed all the funny things at Herculaneum.

"So I went into the bond business.

"I chose this rather than the tack business or the pickle industry because I thought of it first.

"One day, after inflicting many a poor hour on the dough-laden inhabitants of the old Bay State, suddenly I saw a great light. It was similar to the new Mazda lamp except that the little wires spelt—advertising.

three of us 'The Three Musketeers,' set out on foot to cross the Alps into Italy and return. It was a wonderful trip and I hope some day we will have it written up by Hermann, for the trip was full of exciting adventures. Early in September I left them and joined Junie Foster and Tom Claflin in Paris and London. We returned just in time to commence my only year in the Law School. In 1908 I commenced my work in my brother's law offices. Most of the work was the promoting of the famous Rome & Osceola Railroad. We are still working on it and it will not be long before it will be in operation. Not content with this alone, I bought, with one of my brothers, a valuable business site and we are now nearing completion of the White building, which in time will be the largest office building in Utica. During the six years I have been back to every class day and reunion, and hope to come back for every one in the future."

HARRY ELKINS WIDENER. Son of George Dunton Widener and Eleanor (Elkins) Widener.

Born at Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 3, 1885.

Prepared for college at DeLancey and Hill Schools.

Died April 15, 1912, at sea.

Harry Elkins Widener was among those who lost their lives on the Titanic when she foundered off the banks of Newfoundland on April 15, 1912. The heroism of the passengers who quietly waited for death, realizing that the lifeboats would not hold them, will always be remembered.

Widener fitted for college at the DeLancey School in Philadelphia, and later at the Hill School, from which he graduated. He entered Harvard in the autumn of 1903 and was graduated with his class in the spring of 1907. He was intensely interested in the collection of rare and valuable books, and at the time of his death owned about twenty-five hundred volumes, the value of which is almost priceless. Some of them can probably never be duplicated. These books were left to Harvard College, and will always be among the gems of the library. Is a mechanical engineer. Writes: "In September, 1907, I settled down to work with the Sullivan Mach. Co., Claremont, N. H., and remained there until March, 1909, on engineering work. At that time I returned to Boston to go into sales work with a steel tubing house. The work was what is generally termed missionary work. After a fairly successful six months I was perfectly satisfied that the Lord never intended me for a missionary, so I returned to engineering work with Dennison Mfg. Co., at Framingham, Mass., where I have remained since September, 1909.

"In June, 1911, I was married to Gladys Wheeler, of Concord, Mass., Wellesley, '06, and we now have a fine young son in the family who already can give nine long rah's for Harvard."

cated at Providence as a weigh master for the Seaconnet Coal Co., a retail concern, owned by C. H. Sprague & Son, Boston, through whom I obtained the position. This concern did a large business in steam coal, supplying many of the large mills at Providence with 'Sprague's New River Steam Coal,' which was unloaded and handled by us at the Seaconnet wharf. While there I had a good opportunity to learn the practical end of the business, and a trip to the mines, in West Virginia, was an education in itself.

"I stayed at Providence about a year, and roomed on Waterman street, near Brown University, as did also Frank Dodge, of our class, a fact which made it pleasant for me there. In June, 1908, I started out on the road selling steam coal to the various mills and factories in the neighborhood of Boston. This proved to be a rather hard proposition, owing to the business depression and the resultant slaughter of prices in our business. I held this, however, for about two years.

"In June, 1910, I married and moved from Malden, where I had always lived, to Winchester, Mass. I built a small home there and have a great deal of pleasure in looking after the place, although it is quite unpretentious.

"Conditions did not improve rapidly in the coal business, so that when my older brother suggested coming with him as sales manager in my father's business, W. W. Winship, 'traveling goods,' 71 Summer St., Boston, I thought it a good move and started with him in December of 1910. This business has held me ever since, and it looks as though it would continue to do so. I might add that it has been a pleasure to see and serve a good many of my classmates."

MacIVER WOODY. Son of Samuel E. Woody and Emma (MacIver) Woody.

Born at Louisville, Ky., March 16, 1886.

Prepared for college at Louisville Male High School.

Business address, Boston City Hospital, Boston, Mass. Residence, same. Permanent address, 600 W. Broadway, Louisville, Ky.

Is a physician. Writes: "Those of us who lingered in the University after graduating from the college have little to offer in the shape of a career. After a year at home, I entered the Medical School. I graduated there last June and now I am doing hospital work.

"The first two months after graduation were uncomfortable because of uncertainty as to what I was to do. I hurried home from Cambridge, hoping to work under the reform administration that had just taken office. But my appointment was slow in coming and it was late in September before I began work as a supervisor of streets, with a table in the drafting room. Unfortunately, my work was in the office and I saw little of the city, but I did gain a first-hand knowledge of city hall life.

"I stayed there just a year and resigned to return to Boston. The four years in the Medical School were delightful; the work was interesting and the students were picked men and very much in earnest. During two summers I was a camp doctor at a boys' camp in New Hampshire. Towards the end of my last year I became house physician at the Parental School in West Roxbury, and from there I went to Butler Hospital as assistant physician. Last March I began my services as surgical interne at the Boston City Hospital. Early in 1915 I hope to enter practice in Louisville."

Is a landscape gardener. Writes: "A Bussey Institute graduate of landscape gardening. First year after graduating was caretaker of greenhouses at the Bussey. From there, two years at Hick's Museum, in Westbury, L. I., found work there very interesting and instructive. Returned to Harvard for another year in landscape architecture. Am now in that work in South Framingham, with American Forestry Co. Have found this work well adapted to my taste, although not so remunerative from a monetary standpoint . It is conducive to an interesting life, full of ideals and simple, true living, healthy and a chance for great work. Had several fine offers to go to Chicago and further West, but think the East a better place at present for the forming of an education and experience."

that the elusive parchment would evade me put me in such a receptive mood that when, as fortune had it just after graduatinon, several typhoid bacilli passed my way, I received them with open arms with the result that I topped my education with a summer in the banks of the Charles in the Charlesgate Hospital. A very pleasant finishing school it is, but it did not succeed in its mission, for, after two months of pleasant delirious dreams, during which I made and lost many fortunes, I emerged with the aid of a crutch and a thermos bottle. Recovery set in early in December, 1907, which month found Richard himself again, with nothing to do, plenty of time to do it in, and no money to do it with. Physicians, patience and strength testers and other high-salaried mechanics advised me, however, that I was still unfit for hard work, so I went back to Law School in January. A pleasant six months' rest it was—no monitors—placing me in the proper condition to enter the business arena in July, 1908, which I took the unprecedented precaution of doing under the sheltering wing of the Pater. We are pursuing the almighty under the Indian sign in the cigar manufacturing and tariff extracting business. Twice each year I wend my weary way West even unto Denver, proclaiming my wares to the unsuspecting public. Up to present writing have not been called upon to testify before any congressional investigating committees, but they can get me at any time at Yocum Brothers, Reading, Pa., which address I now advertise fearlessly, no longer having any reverence for creditors, and hoping that matrimonial agencies will put it on their mailing lists."

In September, 1908, I entered the Harvard Law School. I was for a time an editor of the Harvard 'Law Review.' I received my degree of LL.B. in 1911.

"In September, 1911, I entered the law office of Ropes, Gray & Gorham, Boston, where I now am.

"In March, 1910, I was elected selectman of Weston, and I still hold that office. Outside of my profession, my chief interest is in town affairs and in a somewhat lesser degree, in general politics.

"For two years after graduation, I kept up in track athletics and ran on the Boston Athletic Association relay team.

"My life, though uneventful, has been a busy and a happy one."
